BUILDING MATERIALS.

A BUILDING THAT DOES NOT DEPRECIATE quickly is obviously a good investment, other things being equal.

One of the biggest features about HARDIE'S "FIBROLITE" (Reg.) ASBESTOS CEMENT SHEETS is their wonderful durability and strength. "Fibrolite" successfully resists Rust, Fire, Acids, White Ants—which quickly ruin other materials. "Fibrolite" buildings are substantially cheaper than Weatherboard. They are quickly erected and are proof against the hard knocks of time. "Fibrolite" is made by the Asbestos Slate and Sheet Manufacturing Co., Ltd., at Camellia, near Sydney.

SEND FOR SAMPLE AND PRICES before you build or make alterations. Also ask about these other reliable building materials.

"REXILITE" BRITISH ROOFING resists all the elements that ruin iron. It is easily laid, is inexpensive, and exceptionally durable.

"FIBERLIC" BUILDING BOARD supersedes lath and plaster, because stronger and more beautiful in appearance. It is the strongest wallboard made.

3 PLY WOOD LININGS in various timbers, are cheaper than steel linings, more durable and superior in appearance.

"FIBRO-C" PAINT. A high-class paint in paste form for "Fibrolite" Cement and Similar Surfaces. Entirely different and superior to Kalsomine. Comes in 21 shades.

JAMES HARDIE and CO., Circular Quay West, SYDNEY. 'Phone, 6239 (3 Lines).

THE ATTRACTIVE WOMAN

is not the well-dressed woman always, but she is the lady who possesses

A SOFT, CLEAR, AND HEALTHY COMPLEXION.

WOULD YOU COVET THESE PRICELESS GIFTS? IF SO

come to me. Not alone can I give them to you, but I will tell you how to keep them; for delay always means a longer case, more worry, also money to be spent; so just call the first time you are in Sydney. A chat will cost nothing, and you will be glad to have met me, for I give

EVERY COURTESY AND ATTENTION TO EACH CASE.

And feel most deeply for those Ladies who are also afflicted with

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS AND MOLES,

as each day I have told me most pathetic stories where home cures have been employed. Why do you not think before you use these applications? You must know that everything which grows must have a root, and unless that be destroyed

THE GROWTH MUST CONTINUE.

DO NOT BE MISLED LONGER,

by thinking that constant use will eventually destroy the hairs; instead, it will increase the growth by ten per cent., as it strengthens the finer hairs. I will convince you of my success by giving

A FREE TRIAL TREATMENT, WRITTEN GUARANTEE, AND ONE HUNDRED POUNDS REWARD IF I FAIL. SIXTEEN YEARS' PRACTICE AT MY PRESENT ADDRESS.

LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, GOUT.

Torturing, grinding, rasping pain—let it come in the guise of Sciatica, Muscular Inflammatory Rheumatism, or Lumbago, Dr PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY WILL RELIEVE IT.

You know that rheumatism is caused by excess uric acid in the blood, but do you know how the uric acid gets there? I will tell you.

A portion of all the food you eat is turned into new blood. Now this blood is bound to contain impurities, such as uric acid. It is the business of the kidneys to filter the blood and remove all impure matter. Well, when the kidneys fail to do their work properly the uric acid remains in the blood and becomes more and more poisonous, until the torturing pains of rheumatism and kidney disease are the result.

You might try baths, massage, electricity, injections, hot air, dieting, etc, but you cannot cure it that way. You have to find the cause and remove it. Find something that will make the kidneys purify the blood. Dr. PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY has relieved every form of Rheumatism, and is now obtainable with or without Liniment at Anthony Hordern and Sons, Ltd., Brickfield-hill, and Elliott Bros., wholesale druggists. Prices:

THE "SYDNEY MAIL" has a connection with the leading Photographic News Agencies of Europe, and its War Pictures are unique.

A SOLDIER WROTE HOME AS FOLLOWS:—

"You ask if there is anything I want. Cigarettes, candies, chocolates, and books are always welcome, but, above all, letters; we count time by the arrival of the mail, and I cannot tell you the disappointment we suffer when we find that for us there is no letter. I don't mind the privations or the guns, but I simply cannot face an empty mail day."

How much more would he prize a small photo, from home, one small enough to carry in his pocket. Send him a "Crown Jewel" photo. We have seen the Postal Authorities and the Military Censor, and the "Crown Jewel" photo. in an ordinary letter envelope, if properly addressed, will be sent to any part of the world, including England, France, Russia, Germany, Austria, Turkey, Bulgaria, or anywhere else, at the ordinary letter rate of postage. It will go post free to a Prisoner of War in any Country.

Sit for your photo., in a Crown Jewel; you are sure to be pleased with it.

It is much more imposing and artistic than a postcard. Price, 7/6 per dozen.

Or we will copy any photo. you send us, and supply one dozen "Crown Jewels" for 7/6, post free, and return your photo. uninjured.

Send us your photo. to-day, and get the "Crown Jewel" photo. in time for the mail to reach him before Christmas. The "Crown Jewel" is a charming little love carrier: it is a carry-easy-photo.; it will fit a pocket-book and weighs less than an ounce.

PAIGE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA.

You can judge a car's quality by the noise it makes, or does not make. The quietness of operation in Paige Motors shows the extraordinary progress made in the refinement of motor design. The Paige Motor Co. has the finest testing device department and inspection room in Detroit, according to an eminent authority. This authority, who is a professor in the University of Minnesota, recently visited all the Detroit plants, and after making a thorough inspection of the Paige plant, he made the statement that the Paige Motor Co. was away ahead of all the others in the extent and severity of their inspection. Futhermore, the inspection devices in the Paige Motor Company's plant can not be bought, they are especially designed by their own engineers, and made to their order. They do not depend on the human element to make tests, but do so by machinery, which is absolutely exact. By means of these machines they get labour from 10 to 20 cents an hour cheaper than anybody else who is testing material, and they take that saving and put it back into the car. This economy all helps to make

CURRENT LITERATURE.

AMERICA AND THE WAR.

"The United States and the War," an acute analysis of American opinion by Mr. Gilbert V. Seldes, shows the various stages by which a belligerent sentiment developed. Mr. Seldes is passionately pro-Ally in sympathy; he is convinced that national ideals and national interest alike bind his country to the Allies' cause. He knows that for America consideration both of the past and of the future demands the overthrow of Prussianism. But, while he is unmeasured in his denunciation of the Germans and their intrigues in America, he objects almost as strongly to the vociferousness of those whom he ironically terms "the better Americans." It was all very well for these to clamour for armed intervention: the position was too complex for such a simple and forthright policy. Mr. Seldes is firmly convinced that any attempt to involve America immediately and directly in the war would have been disastrous. The vague currents of public opinion had to be given time to unite; the flux of emotion had to crystallise. Because of the peculiar circumstances of America the process was bound to be slow, but was bound eventually to be complete. The author wrote when America was still neutral; but he regarded her intervention as obligatory, and, indeed, inevitable sooner or later. He sums up the position in these words: "The attitude of the United States to the war has been one of indifference, based on ignorance, due to isolation and to the preoccupation of the country with its own adventure. To that contribute false notions of society, misleading interpretations of history, and, more than these, the lack of an active idealism. It is a hard charge against a country; but if the United States does not enter the war it will bear its own punishment."

For the United States the war falls into several sharply-defined periods, from the beginning to the sinking of the Lusitania, from that event to the beginning of the Presidential campaign; thence to the announcement of the unrestricted submarine campaign, and finally the period in which the determination for war became settled. Each of these has its own characteristic. First of all, there was a mood of great excitement. American tourists returned with tales of their terrible sufferings; sympathy with Belgium and Servia was generous and practical, but was only offered to the Allies with certain reserves. American sentiment was hostile to Russia, suspicious of British "Imperialism," and, though traditionally Francophile, a little inclined to consider France "an effete and dissipated country." In the early part of 1915 the first shock of the war had worn off, to be succeeded by an indifference enhanced by commercial prosperity. The Middle West and Far West in particular declared that they were "fed up" with the war. There was even an agitation for an embargo on the export of food, steel, copper, cotton, and hides to the Allies. But gradually the outrages on the high seas made Americans realise that, willy nilly, they were involved in the war, and that it only remained for them to choose their side. When this day arrived there was not a single moment's hesitation. Each period had its separate character in the attitude of public opinion, but there was one constant factor—the activity of pro-Germans "consisting of German and Austrian official agents, protected agents-provocateurs, Americans of German birth or descent, and sympathisers with the Sinn Fein. Their activity began with the first days of the war, and reached its most daring and dangerous point after the crime of the Lusitania." Their policy was one of bluff; instead of trying to make amends by apology and quiescence, and so to ensure that America would remain neutral, they deliberately sought to terrorise her into neutrality. This was a grievous error in tactics. It was one thing to be neutral as a matter of deliberate judgment. It was another, and a quite intolerable, thing to be bullied and bulldozed into neutrality by a gang of bravos of high and low degree.

Mr. Seldes views the first two and a half years of the war as a time in which America was being educated to appreciate not only the real issues of the war, but also the fact that her own national ideals and her own national safety were bound up in them. She had two teachers, the Germans and President Wilson. Mr. Seldes's discussion of the President's attitude is extremely interesting. He believes that President Wilson learned that he might himself teach. At first his "tragic idealism" made him cling to the Lincolnian precept of government for, of, and by the people. Until the middle of 1915 he chose to lead the people, only to a goal of their own selection. But at the end of 1915 he was forced to change this policy. "He was compelled by circumstances which he grew steadily to understand to become a leader of the people." The author recalls the frequent gibe that the President was a "schoolmaster" and accepts it. It was fortunate that the President was a schoolmaster, for he had a large and difficult curriculum to impose on his country. "He began the slow process of education, seizing upon every event of the war to drive his lesson home; he set before the people of the United States a new purpose; he drove home their ancient idealisms, and demanded that they be realised. The direction of his work was solely and simply to prepare the United States for war." Mr. Seldes does not know whether this was conscious or unconscious. President Wilson may have been aware from the first to what his policy tended or he may have only realised this later. But in the author's opinion he handled "dull and reluctant Congresses" in a masterly fashion. He could have burked the proposal that Americans should not travel on Allied ships before it came to a vote; but he took up the challenge, called the pro-German "bluff," and won handsomely. While one set of critics were denouncing the President as an impractical pedagogue, another was resenting his "tyranny." "Mr. Wilson has said many foolish things," observes the author, "but he has done more wise things than the country desired him to do. The wisest was education. The citizens who shrank from war in May, 1915, were prepared a year later to know that war was inevitable. The whole meaning of that year for America is lost unless one sees the President sincerely and skilfully building up a sentiment which would leave him free to act as Germany's outrages demanded action." Once again Germany proved herself a useful auxiliary to the process of education by describing the war as one for commerce, trade routes, and undeveloped territory to exploit. In the hard-headed, commercial American is a strong bump of idealism. "When Germany came and said without shame that it was for these things, for these things alone, that ten million men were facing death, she set a black stain on the shield of war, and was damned eternally so that the Goth and the Vandal might have sat in judgment against her. Men have before misstated the objects of their wars. It is only Germany who has chosen to belittle her war, to make of her effort at dominion a commercial enterprise, and to exalt her statesmen to the rank of commercial travellers!" (Allen and Unwin.)

REMINISCENCES OF A LITERARY LIFE.

Mr. J. F. Tattersall, editor of "Reminiscences of a Literary Life," has made quite a remarkable "find." In an old provincial book shop he came across two volumes in manuscript which, said the bookseller, had been bought at a country sale in a job lot of old ledgers and account books, and had narrowly escaped being resold as waste paper or destroyed. In fact, the only reason why they had been preserved was that they contained some very illustrious names. Mr. Tattersall bought them, read them, and has now published them. They are the private memoirs of one Charles MacFarlane, who was born in 1799, and died 59 years later. MacFarlane was a man of letters who had travelled a good deal on the Continent and in the Levant, and though he ended his days in poor circumstances, at one time had the entree to the fashionable and literary society of London, and the "English colonies" in Italy. He himself seems to have been one of the journeymen of literature. Few will ever have heard of him, yet he had some vogue in his day, and was not only a prolific writer, but had no difficulty in getting his work published. He is the author of many "three-decker" novels, elaborate histories (often in a dozen volumes), and heavy books of travel. These are utterly forgotten now, but must have appealed to the taste of the day, as some of them ran into several editions. It is an ironic circumstance that while his serious work has long since disappeared into the limbo of the unread, the single book that has lasted all these years, and that will, one imagines, continue to interest future students of literature, is one which he wrote as a relaxation, and for which he could find no publisher.

MacFarlane himself is rather a commonplace figure. He is not exactly a snob, but he is never ashamed of being on terms of intimacy with the aristocracy, and he never forgets that he himself can boast patrician Highland descent. He is a kindly soul, and seems to have felt little of the rivalries and antagonisms of the literary society of his day, with one exception. He has no complimentary remarks to make about Byron, although Byron was a peer; in fact, there is a steady note of hostility to Byron throughout the memoirs. For the rest, MacFarlane can always find an excuse for those on whom the judgment of the world frowns; or, at any rate, sympathy if there is no excuse. The value of the book is that we are shown an extraordinary rich and vivid literary society as it appeared to a contemporary member of the set. This was before tradition had had time to form. Each is taken on its merits; the view of the day is given. MacFarlane's impressions are interesting, and reveal a sound critical taste. He sojourned in Bohemia in a golden age; and, although he does not altogether escape the influence of current prejudice and opinion, he had in later years reason to congratulate himself on the perspicacity of his judgment. He met a young Englishman in an Italian gallery, and guided him to the best pictures; he left him with the conviction that here was a poet and here was a burning soul that would soon outwear its earthly frame. Not long afterwards he heard that Shelley had been drowned; it was his chance acquaintance. MacFarlane as a boy knew Keats well enough to affirm that he was not "snuffed out by an article;" he knew Tom Hood and (to his cost) Leigh Hunt and the uncrowned king of poetry, Sam Rogers, whose monarchy seems to have been due chiefly, not to his verse, but to his sumptuous banquets. He knew Sir Walter Scott, who was growing old and toil-worn. Everyone loved the good Sir Walter, but there were whispers that he was working himself to death in order to provide a host of sycophants with regal entertainment at Abbotsford. Oddly enough, MacFarlane met few of the rising generation of poets. Browning, Tennyson, and Swinburne must have already appeared over the horizon, but there is no mention of them. On the other hand, there is much about men whose very names, like that of the author, are now quite forgotten.

He introduces us to a somewhat boisterous, irregular society, in which literary men did not trouble to mind their p's and q's. Unless he had a title or a comfortable income or an established reputation, the man of letters was still an object of some suspicion. He retaliated by expressing his scorn of the world in his unconventionality. "Grub Street" had gone, but there was still an alley or two off Fleet-street to keep up the tradition. MacFarlane gives us a glimpse of the same world that Thackeray has often described, a world of deep potations and riotous suppers, of unashamed debt and lavish generosity when funds were available. However, his range of acquaintanceship was catholic. He numbered among his friends such people as Brunel, the originator of the Channel tunnel scheme, and gives a lively account of a journey with young Brunel. He was also on intimate terms with the "dandies" who made themselves so notorious in the later Georgian days. He met Brummell on several occasions, both during his heyday and in his decadence, as British consul at Caen. MacFarlane reminds us of a thing that is often forgotten. With all his vanities and extravagances, Brummell was a reformer. At a time when even men of fashion were apt to model their language and behaviour on Billingsgate, and to omit attentions to the toilet which we nowadays regard as indispensable, Brummell stood for cleanliness of mouth and person, for frequent baths, for a high code of morality in matters where looseness was then the rule—worthy things, which should be remembered to Brummell's credit as well as his eccentricities. NEW NOVELS.

In "Secret Bread" Miss E. Tennyson Jesse has chosen a spacious canvas for a spacious design—the history of three generations in which fate rounds off the full circle. On the night that Ishmael Ruan was born—the night of the day on which his parents were wedded—he becomes heir to the land of Cloam. He is the youngest of a numerous brood, but the only son in the sight of the law. Archelaus, the eldest of his brothers, feels that he has been cheated of his birthright, and on this revolves the plot as it moves to its slow denouement. Ishmael grows from youth to manhood and from manhood to old age. He becomes a father, and then a grandfather. Always the possession of Cloam sinks deeper into his soul, and he sees in prospect the torch handed on through Nicholas, his son, down to Nicholas's small boy. The Ruans, entitled to the name, will still hold Cloam. At last, in the evening of his days, comes the disillusion which shatters him at first, and then gives way to the contentment born of the knowledge that Cloam is still the same, and the direct title to it has merely skipped a generation. To this succeeds the greater calm of a mind at peace with itself, all passion spent—that is the "secret bread"—and as Ishmael dies, the little torch-bearer is playing with boats in the village stream, unconscious of the dramatic irony of his existence. Ishmael is the nominal "hero," but the real protagonist is inanimate—Cloam, with its rich Cornish acres. It is the background for many episodes, tragic, passionate, bitter, which pass and are forgotten, while the land remains. The characters emerge and disappear; the vivid intensity of their emotions is ephemeral compared to the stage on which they play their transitory parts. The book is a long one as novels go; it is a tribute to the author's skill that there is not a superfluous page. (Heinemann; Dymocks.)

In "'Possum" Mrs. Mary Grant Bruce has, for the time being at least, forsaken Billabong and its people for the hills and lakes of Gippsland. The M'Leods have to leave Melbourne for their small boy's health. They decide to take a farm in the country, and in due course are established in a place where there is certainly ample scope for roughing it. They are all willing to work hard, but are unacquainted with the ways of the land, and would have fared badly but for the help of 'Possum. 'Possum is a young girl who has drudged all her life in the back-blocks. She is ignorant of the latest fashions, and has few polite accomplishments, but what she does not know about farming is not worth knowing. She becomes guide, philosopher, and friend of the M'Leods, teaches them how to run the farm, saves Garth's life, and makes herself useful in a thousand ways. She asks no reward and expects none, but receives one nevertheless. Mrs. M'Leod takes the gauche, unkempt bush girl in hand, knocks off various rough edges, teaches her how to behave and how to dress, and, in fact, makes quite an elegant young lady of her without in the least spoiling her simplicity and genuineness. In the end we see the transformed 'Possum ruffling it with the best of them at the regatta, the social event of the year. Mrs. Grant Bruce's books are always wholesomely pleasant; this one is no exception to the rule. (Ward, Lock, and Co.)

In "Broken Idols," Mrs. Mabel B. Brookes has utilised her experiences in Egypt to provide her with the setting for an Australian war novel. The hero, a Melbourne officer, reaches Cairo with the first contingent only to fall into an entanglement with a dashing and seductive individual, who afterwards turns out to be an Austrian spy. Meanwhile his wife, who follows him to Egypt, learns of his infidelity. Eventually there is a reconciliation, and the major makes amends for the past on the fields of France, whence he does not return. That this is the author's first attempt in fiction betrays itself by a certain amateurishness of style and conventionality of language and characterisation. But these shortcomings are in a measure redeemed by her descriptions of Egyptian life and scenery. (Melville and Mullen.)

QUARTERLY REVIEWS.

MINOR ELEMENTS OF SEA POWER.

In an article in the "Quarterly Review," Mr. John Leyland, the well-known writer on naval subjects, deals with "The minor elements of sea power." Without its lesser and auxiliary elements, he says, the fleet would be destitute of essential means for its action; and without the services of the merchant navy the country could look forward to nothing but defeat. These lesser factors of sea power may be taken to comprise the fleet of patrolling destroyers, torpedo-boats, submarines, mother ships, airships, seaplanes, aeroplanes, and aircraft carriers, mining vessels, special service vessels, colliers, oilers, tanks, distilling vessels, workshop and repair ships, store ships, ordnance vessels, hospital ships, tugs, lighters, and a crowd of other craft. One of the most remarkable features of the war has been the extraordinary adaptability which the navy has displayed in breaking down barriers of recent tradition and prejudice, and absorbing into itself all the best elements of the mercantile marine and the fisheries; in training men, providing them with a nucleus of officers and specialist ratings, and thus creating such a force as the world has not before seen. Few people could have foreseen the enormous demands made upon our destroyer flotillas by the many military enterprises in which we have engaged, and it is doubtful if the United States could have rendered more valuable service than in sending the flotilla of destroyers which recently arrived in British waters, or the Japanese in despatching their light forces to the Mediterranean. As for the merchant service, Mr. Leyland adds, it has suffered cruel losses and hardships, but, aided by the means devised by the navy, it has shown that the situation is not such as the enemy hopes and believes.

THE GALLANTRY OF FRANCE.

Writing in the "Edinburgh Review" on "The Gallantry of France," Mr. Edmund Gosse, C.B., refers to the great number of young men of high intellectual promise who have been killed in the war. Especially in the first months of the autumn of 1914 was the holocaust a terrible one for France. "They gave the impression of being dedicated. As we now read their letters, their journals, their poems, we are astonished at the high level of moral sentiment which actuated them all." For instance, the youthful Leo Lantil, who was killed early in 1915 in the Champagne, says, in writing to his parents shortly before his death, "All our sacrifice will be of sweet savour if it leads to a really glorious victory and brings more light to human souls." It was this Leo Lantil, dying in his 25th year, whose last words were: "Priez pour la France, travailles pour la France, hausser-la!" In the ranks of these Rupert Brookes and Julian Grenfells and Charles Listers, of France, Mr. Gosse specially mentions Quartermaster Paul Lintier, who was killed in his 23rd year, Colonel Patrice Mahon (known in letters as Art Roe), Captain Detanger (Emile Nolly), Marcel Drouet and Jacques de Choudens. The style of Paul Lintier he describes as one of the miracles of art. There is no evidence that the author of "Ma Piece" had studied much or devoted himself to any of the training which adequate expression commonly demands. We know nothing about him until he suddenly bursts upon us, in the turmoil of mobilisation, as a finished author. Mr. Gosse adds that a year ago the "Revue Critique," one of the most serious and original of the learned journals of Paris, announced the losses it had endured. It was conducted by a staff of 40 scholars, by the summer of 1916 this number had been reduced by 27. Thirteen had been killed, 11 severely wounded, and three had disappeared.

THE GERMAN COLONIES.

The future of the German colonies is discussed in the "Edinburgh" by a writer who hides his identity under the pen-name of "Mallam." It is with the African colonies that he deals chiefly. Altogether the German colonal empire before the war occupied over a million square miles. Of this total well over 900,000 square miles was in Africa, nearly 100,000 square miles in the South Pacific, and about 200 square miles at Kiao-chao. As far as Kiao-chao is concerned, the matter has already gone beyond discussion, says this writer. The refusal of Japan and China to restore Kiao-chao to Germany is certain, and this fact must have a direct influence both upon the Pacific and the African problem. Germany's Pacific colonies and an important fraction of her African colonies were conquered not by Imperial but by dominion forces, and if the Imperial Government should decide to hand them back to Germany, while Japan declines to hand back Kiao-chao, the Dominions would assuredly conclude that membership of the Empire had served them an ill turn, imposing costly burdens of watchful defence upon their peoples and their revenues, and depriving them of the protection for their future interests which their own arms had won. "At any rate," he adds, "it would be a monstrous act of perfidy to the natives who have now passed under French and British rule if they were traded back to Germany. They have joyfully transferred their allegiance, and they know that wholesale hangings, floggings, confiscation of property, and burning of villages await them if they are handed back."

LABOUR UNREST.

The industrial upheaval in Australia, whatever the real cause of it, has served to focus public attention on the relations between employer and employed; and in this connection there is an interesting article—"Thoughts on the Present Discontents"—in the "Quarterly Review." It is written by Mr. C. Ernest Fayle. He refers to the engineers' strike and other recent manifestations of industrial discontent. "A ten days' stoppage of work by ten thousand men," he says, "is much easier to realise and much more likely to attract attention than the fact that fifty thousand men have been working at 5 per cent. below their maximum capacity for forty days; yet the effect on output is exactly the same. In the ordinary year the time lost in strikes is very much less important than the loss in time, or its equivalent in limitation of effort, caused by discontent and friction, which stop short of declared hostilities. These considerations apply with particular force in time of war." There are not wanting signs, he adds, that Labour would be willing to lay aside such of the old trade union rules as can be proved to be restrictive of output, and an obstacle to efficient and economic production, if it were admitted to some measure of more direct control over the conditions under which it works, and that many employers would welcome the admission of Labour to such participation in knowledge and responsibility as would make for intelligent and willing co-operation, in place of the old open hostility or passive resistance. He is of opinion that we shall not get rid of labour unrest until we have made it possible for the workers to feel themselves members of an undivided community, united by the double bonds of common interests and reciprocal obligations.

STAR OF ANZAC.

(BY PROFESSOR D. A. WELSH.)

Because he loved this land, he fought
In other lands,
A daring lance of Empire wrought
By honour's hands;

A soldier born of peaceful suns
And freedom's breath,
He walks with God amid the guns
And jests with Death.

Shall we, who shelter safe behind
His stalwart frame,
Not work for God and him, but find
Abiding shame?

Not hold the high resolve that we
Will never stain
His sacrifice, nor ever see
His toil made vain?

Lest we forget the deathless stand
Of those who fight,
An emblem of our faith and land
Is lit at night;

Lest we forget things greater than
Our human dross,
Each starry night reveals to man
The Southern Cross.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

The writer of "A Woman's Letter" comments upon the sudden death of Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree on July 2, at the age of 63. "Into the dark go one and all." Thus Henley in his "Ballade of Dead Actors." The theatre-loving world will mourn the sudden death of Sir Herbert Tree. It was so unexpected. No one seemed to realise that his fall on a staircase without the rupturing of the tendon over his kneecap might have given his system a jar, that the heart suffered shock, and the end came, "with one step in the dark." I had the privilege of knowing Sir Herbert personally, and I suppose few people had seen more of his work. My first knowledge of his acting was Macari in "Called Back," the character out of which no doubt his Svengali in "Trilby" was later to evolve. He was always excellent in foreign character acting—a fine comedian, a master of make-up. I recall with sincere admiration for his art his Malvolio, Richard III. (the best of Richards I have seen), Shylock, Wolsey, Fagin, Colonel Newcome, and the double roles of Micawber and Pegotty in "David Copperfield." And now the curtain has fallen. In his own family he was loved. No one will be more broken hearted than his eldest child Viola, whom I have known since she was a girl of 11. They were devoted to each other. He moved in the cleverest circles of society. Both Lady Tree and himself had the gift of epigram and of neatly-turned phrases." It may be added that on July 12 the Bishop of Birmingham officiated at a memorial service at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, at which there was a representative gathering of artists. Mme. Clara Butt sang "For God shall Wipe Away All Tears," and the organist played Beethoven's "Ode to Joy." This music forms the fourth and final movement to the Choral Symphony (the Ninth), the words being from Schiller's poem "An Ode to Joy," beginning "Joy, thou spark from heaven descending." The work was last heard in its entirety at the Sydney Town Hall in June, 1911, Dr. Coward's Sheffield Choir and soloists assisting in union with the Sydney Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Joseph Bradley directing the performance. Music lovers will remember that the ode is, in fact, a prayer ("Kneel ye millions, kneel before Him, falling humbly at His feet"), and as such more or less suited to any religious function, whether funereal or the reverse. An organist would doubtless render it as pure music sublimely in character with any impressive occasion.

Miss Marie Tempest and Mr. Graham Browne, who telegraphed from Singleton that a railway delay would prevent their appearance at the actors' matinee on Tuesday, arrived in town at 9.30, and left the next evening for Adelaide. It seems that their season in Brisbane drew crowded houses throughout with the Sydney repertoire, so that no new pieces were required. On the way back the principals left the railway at Glen Innes, and started early next morning by motor for Tamworth. After reaching Armidale they ran into bitterly cold weather for a time, but whilst descending the mountains were rewarded by an exquisite yellow and rose sunset, with marvellous purple shadows on the hills. Both travellers have seen a great deal of the world, but they were profoundly impressed by the vast spaces which give the Australian landscape a likeness to ocean breadths. On this boundless panorama unrivalled effects of changeful light are ever at play. From Tamworth the visitors came on to Sydney by train. This evening they will open their season at Adelaide, will take up dates at Perth should strike complications not prove too "black," and after visiting Melbourne will journey on for their tour of New Zealand. In Adelaide Miss Tempest will appear for the first time in Cyril Harcourt's play, "A Pair of Silk Stockings." The author, who also wrote "A Place in the Sun," made his first success with "Silk Stockings" at Winthrop Ames' Little Theatre, a luxurious New York playhouse in an Old English style, which only seats 300 people, and there it enjoyed a prolonged run prior to its production in London last year.

Isolde Menges, a young lady violinist of much distinction, is likely to visit Australia in the near future. This English artist with the foreign name is at present touring Canada, whence she is to revisit New York before touring the United States. Born in England, Miss Menges made her debut in London as soloist at Queen's Hall with a Symphony Orchestra in February, 1913, and then filled engagements at many orchestral concerts in Great Britain. Savonoff, the Russian conductor, then engaged her for a personally directed tour in his own country, and Mendelberg, the Dutch conductor, introduced her at Amsterdam. The press notices of her New York debut at the Aeolian Hall on October 21 last are remarkably eulogistic. Howard Edie, who managed the visit of the Cherniavskys with Maud Allen to Sydney three years ago, is in charge of the Isolde Menges concerts in Canada and America.

Miss Maud Fane, who will sing the leading soprano role to-night in the new musical comedy, "You're in Love," was born in Liverpool, England, where she joined the Plantapetra Choir, noted for the number of prizes it won at Welsh Eisteddfods. Her sister, May Glenn, had been for some years a prima donna with the Carl Rosa and other grand opera companies, and then in George Dance's musical comedy pieces. In this way, when Edward Branscombe formed "The Scarlet Troubadours" in 1910, for India, China, and the East, both sisters joined it. This costume concert party also toured Australia and New Zealand more than once, after which Miss Fane revisited Liverpool, and in a few months left for India, Japan, China, and Australia with Warwick's "Court Cards" party, an engagement which lasted a year and a half. For some time Miss Fane sang on the Tivoli Theatre circuit, and was then engaged as principal girl in "Mother Goose" by the J. C. Williamson management. Good parts in "To-night's the Night," "High Jinks," and "Canary Cottage" strengthened the artist's position with the public, fully justifying her appearance during the past week as Suzanne in "The Girl in the Taxi."

In Melbourne, Miss Ethel Cadman, generally supposed to have left Australia for America, has rejoined the Royal Comic Opera Company for the role of Sonia ("The Merry Widow"), an exacting part which she is alternating with Minnie Love, to the Natalie of Florence Young, and the Danilo of Leslie Holland. This group of artists will revive "The Cinema Star" to-night, and will then leave for New Zealand. Their place will be taken next Saturday by a new combination, formed chiefly from the principals of "The House that Jack Built" pantomime, and thus for the first time the J. C. Williamson management will be running three musical comedy companies. The opening piece will be "Mr. Manhattan" (music by Howard Talbot), a dashing farce with a good plot, successfully staged both in New York and London. Mr. Louis Kimball, hitherto seen here only in comedy-drama, has done a good deal of musical work in America, notably in "The Yankee Consul," and will appear in the name part. Miss Kathlene MacDonell, whose success at the Melbourne Theatre Royal in "Daddy Longlegs" will be followed to-night by "Outcast," will shortly be seen as the little Duke, the great Napoleon's son, in Rostand's "L'Aiglon." This poetic French drama is the one in which Miss Tittell Brune was introduced in Australia. Mr. Charles Waldron will appear as the devoted Sergeant of the Old Guard. At the King's Theatre "Much Ado" will be followed to-night by "Julius Caesar." The Allan Wilkie Company is in its fifth week at the Princess's Theatre with "Seven Days' Leave." On the musical side, Melbourne has been stirred by a choral contest, opened at the Town Hall by Sir John Madden, and directed by a committee formed from the combined choirs of the metropolis. The first prize of £50 fell to the Ballarat Choral Union, and the second (£25) to the Orpheon Choristers.

LONESOME HEIGHTS.

BY HALLIWELL SUTCLIFFE.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

Robbie sat on a fallen fir-trunk and listened to it all—the silence, and lilt of Jonathan's scythe up above, as it mowed the grasses down—and he found his soul by the one way known to him. Little by little the broken body of him ceased to hinder; the aches and pains went by; and he looked across the beck, where a little space, blue with speedwell, was guarded by a clump of rowans in full-scented bloom. And here and now the gift of Sight descended on him once again. He saw the fairies peep from round the corner of the tree-boles, glance at him, and know him for a friend. He watched them come—little, green men and maids—and take their stations in the dance, and foot it merrily, with pleasant jest and laughter. There was not a hunchback there among them, and their feet were light and swift. And all his mother's hopes—the mother dead and out of mind long since—clouded Robbie's eyes. So she had hoped for him—straight limbs and dancing feet—and he had never found them in this life.

Jonathan Ratcliffe finished his mowing, and remembered that he had a scolding wife up at Barrass Farm. So he thought he'd take a walk down-hill and cool his heat in Dainty Hollow, where the pool lay deep and brown. At the edge of the pool he found Robbie sitting, with a happy look about his wizened face.

"Seeing fairies, Robbie?" he asked.

"I was, till the thump o' your heavy boots frightened the little folk."

"There's no such things, lad. Get quit o' your dreams."

Robbie laughed at this farmer, as a grown man laughs at a child. "There are more fairies in the world than folk that can see 'em," he said gently. "Did ye ever think of it in that way, Jonathan?"

"Nay, I'm not one as thinks over-much. Give me a field to mow, Robbie, and I care not what sort o' fiery heat I'm working in; but, when it comes to thinking, my head goes all of a dither—gives me a sort o' sunstroke, like, does thinking."

He stepped down to the pool, and plunged in without staying to take off shirt or trousers. The stream ran cool and happy from the stark heat of the moors above, and Jonathan was like a big dog at play, as he splashed and glorified in his bath. Like a dog, too, he shook himself when he came to land again.

"Eh, Robbie," he said, "I'm not so much wetter than I was before wi' mowing. But this is a cooler sort o' wet, lad."

He loitered there, content with the mellow ease and quiet. The weather, he knew, would not change like a maid and have a score moods in a day. Every sign—the look of the sundown, the feel of the wind at his face, the clouds of gnats—spoke of dew o' nights and ripe, keen sunlight through the day. He would mow his other meadow to-morrow, as much of it as he could; and the sun would be as good as twenty haymakers, because there'd scarce be need to turn his grass at all. There was nothing Jonathan lacked just now; rest and a cool body were his, between one day of toil and the next spell of heat; and he was sure of a crop that would last him through the winter, and beyond.

Yet content went by him. He shifted his feet about, and glanced at Robbie, and glanced away again. "I've no sort o' belief in visions, but they telled me you saw Squire's ghost, riding over Cringle Brigg beside him?"

"As plain as I see you, Jonathan, and naught alters that."

"But, lad, it would be like riving a big, ancient tree up. We cannot spare him, and so we all say. Kind and soney—quick with his fists, for all that—and never plaguing a poor farmer for his rent—besides, Robbie, he's too young to go. Five-and-forty, he—just stepping out into his prime, like."

"If I telled ye a lie, Jonathan, I'd see no Green Folk for awhile."

"Visions are naught," snapped Jonathan. "You and your fairies, lad—I'm glad to be quit of them."

He went heavy-hearted up the meadow, and found his wife at the wicket-gate of the farm. "Taken too much ale, have ye?" she asked—"and fallen into beck at afterwards?"

"Nay," said Jonathan, with a weary flash of courage, "I just went in for a frolic—and the wind o' your tongue will dry me safe and soon."

"Always my tongue, as if it weren't quiet as a babby sleeping. If thou guessed, Jonathan, how I've kept it under and under, fearing to hurt ye wi' it—all these years and years gone by—and ye so shammocky and shiftless all the while. If I telled ye half o' what I kept back from telling ye——"

"Oh, be rid of your clacking," said Jonathan. "Squire's soon for death, they say."

Her scolding ceased. Through the crust of her peevish years the news found her heart. "We'd miss him, Jonathan. He's a man among us—what fool telled ye he was dying?"

"Robbie telled me."

"Oh, Robbie. He's all for moonshine and his dreams. Thee get in to thy supper, Jonathan. I'm stalled of waiting for thee."

Robbie, down at the pool, waited till the farmer's rough intrusion ended. He was not unneighbourly, but this was his hour of ease and happiness, fairly won, and he was glad to be alone once more. And soon a face peeped round a clump of hazel—a little elfin face, like a pansy's with the dew-fall on it—and after that the Green Folk stepped out again on dainty feet, and glided to and fro, seeking each other through the mazes of the dance.

Up at Moorseats supper was ended, and lad clipped lass, and they danced to an old fiddle-tune played by Luke the carpenter. But the hunchback, sitting on a tree-bole far away, watched a daintier harvest-dance. Those who laughed at his visions and his fairy-lore thought that he went weaving dreams for pastime; they did not guess how frail and shadowy the world of every-day was to him, how sure his hold on the glamour that endures, though Eden once was lost.

The brave, old dreams returned. One day he would be lithe of limb as these Green People. One day, if he held courage safe at heart, he would foot it, as they did, with a laughing face and dancing feet. To-morrow would be pain and weariness to him; but he was sure of the hereafter.

The June dusk, late to come, and soon to lift to sunrise, gathered round the streamway; and the fairies went to bed. Robbie got to his feet and yawned—for the body of him was tired beyond belief—and moved away down towards home.

"It's good to be living," he said—"as long as the fairies last. And then 'twill be good to die, I reckon."

CHAPTER VII.

THE KETTLE BY THE STREAM.

The Squire got about again, slowly at first, and taking the open with need for some arm or other to lean upon. Then his strength roused itself before its time, and would not be denied. He loathed illness as men hate pestilence; and he fought his weakness, day by day, till a borrowed strength came to him, and he rode among the uplands once again, gay and debonair, astride of a mettled horse. Of old he had been patient in the listening, when there was a sorrow here, or there a rent to be lowered because the times were hard. He was more patient now.

His folk had loved him, with a keen and buoyant liking for his friendly strength. And now their love deepened, as they saw—what Holt himself did not see in the glass as he shaved himself o' mornings—the little threads of weakness spin themselves about his face. His laughter came more readily even than in old days. His heart was quicker for pity, his hand swifter to reach down and help the fallen from the gutter. He was like a man transfigured, going about the usual countryside with something of the light that Hunchback Robbie glimpsed when he was free for awhile to listen to the further music.

He had a great sense of freedom these days, and with it a need to take Jasper often up the brinkfields till they came to Lonesome Heights.

"We began up here, lad," he would say. "You can see the tumbled ruins of the house in the corner yonder, where the Holts lived in the long-gone-by. Pity we ever left it, and crept down hill for shelter."

Jasper, as in the days of hay-winning, found an instinct that answered to some need of his father's—some hungry, eager need. The more often they came to this high land that had cradled their race in infancy, the surer the lad felt some hand of old tradition on him. He was too young to get the muddled wonder of it into shape; but it seemed that dead folk were calling, calling to him from far-back centuries of land-winning, and scything meadow-grass, and bringing of the harvest home to byre.

On one of these days—October ripe about the moorland, and the breeze piping a litany of peace—Jasper tried once again to tell his father that he would redeem these half-lost acres, soon or late. And again the Squire checked him.

"I've made so many vows in my time, boy, and broken them. If it comes your way, redeem these touzled fields—trench deep, and make good land of 'em again. But no vows, Jasper—they hinder liberty."

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY SIR HENRY LUCY.)

The King and Queen at the Front—"Missing!"—Winston Back in Harness—Reprisals.

WESTMINSTER, July 21.

It would be incredible if it were not a fact of world-wide knowledge that the King, accompanied by the Queen, was absent from home for ten days, spending the time with the fighting forces in France. At least three National Presses of untamed energy and enterprise were concerned in what was the most striking news of the day. And not a word appeared in the British, American, or French newspapers! This is marvellous testimony to journalistic reticence, doubtless tempered by the austerities of the censor. As far as our pressmen were concerned, there was no opportunity of recording the event. The Royal party were spirited to "a port on the south-east coast," as the papers have it when enemy aeroplanes raid Folkestone or Dover, and thence across the Channel haunted by submarine U-boats. No narrative of the start of the journey could possibly have leaked. There was, however, one indication of the truth that did not escape keen observation. "The Court circular," published daily, scrupulously records the whereabouts and doings of the Royal family. After July 2 it was dumb on the subject. The King and Queen were evidently not at Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle. They had gone somewhere. Whither and wherefore?

In the north of France, between Boulogne and the fighting line, which has appreciably extended eastward since the King's last visit, there was no attempt at concealment of the identity of the visitors. The Queen spent her days chiefly in visits paid to the wounded in hospitals, whilst the King closely inspected the field of recent victories at Messines, the Vimy Ridge, and the ruins of Wytschaete, occasionally coming within range of intermittent firing from the enemy, lately driven from these strongholds. Everywhere the King was greeted with strident cheers from the soldiers, whether British, Colonial, or French. At every village his motor car, recklessly draped with the Royal Standard, betraying the identity of its fare, caused men, women, and children to assemble by the roadside to wave their welcome. It is difficult to suppose that the Germans did not know what an attractive target had been added to the lines on which their guns are trained. To have killed or maimed the King of England would have been an achievement before which the glories of the treacherously sunken Lusitania would have paled their ineffective fires. However it be, the German Press, in common with that of the civilised Allies, printed no line on the subject. The secret was kept till the news burst upon the world when the King and Queen were safely back in their London quarters.

Writing to me from his Irish home, Clandeboye, on December 13, 1899, the late Marquis of Dufferin said, "We have three sons in Africa, one a lieutenant in the 9th Lancers is with Methuen, and, as you know, Ava is shut up in Ladysmith. A third has gone out, happily not to fight, but to write a book at the instance of a confiding and appreciative publisher. I only wish I could think he would refrain from poking his nose into danger. But that is a hopeless anticipation, for he will be sure to try to join one or other of his brothers." Of these three sons one only is left. Lord Ava, heir to the Marquisate, was killed early in the Boer war, not before he found opportunity of proving his coolness and courage in perilous places. He lunched with us the day before he left London on what proved his last journey. His autograph is written on a tablecloth among some hundred others of a goodly company. His younger brother, Terence, succeeded to his heritage. Now the third of the group, fondly and proudly named by their illustrious father Lord Basil Blackwood, is officially reported as "missing," an ominous word. At the beginning of the war Lord Basil gave up a snug and safe berth as Private Secretary of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and went out to the front with his regiment, the Grenadier Guards. He was wounded early in the war. As soon as he recovered, perhaps sooner, he hurried back to the fighting line. Inheriting the genius of the Sheridans, he, under modest initials, illustrated "The Bad Child's Book of Beasts," and one or two other books that gained immensely from his sense of humour and his draughtsman's skill.

The most striking and the most contestable feature in the latest reconstruction of the Ministry is the return of Winston Churchill. By a majority of the public his unemployment was regarded as a regrettable waste of energy and capacity. In the House of Commons his rehabilitation is looked upon with favour by Liberals. It is his early associates in political life, the Unionists, who have hitherto withstood the Premier's lurking desire to have him back in the neighbourhood of Downing-street, and who now more than hesitate about the wisdom of the accomplished step. They have never forgiven his change of political sides, a movement finally forced upon him by the aggressive personal attitude towards him. The particular post to which he has been nominated, the Ministry of Munitions, is well suited to his special capacity. The service, created by the tremendous energy of the Prime Minister, requires for its continuous effect to be driven forward in the same spirit. This may be expected from Winston Churchill, who will, happily, be relieved from opportunity of making diversion into fields of warlike strategy or imperial policy.

When the Prime Minister, accompanied by Lord French and General Smuts, visited one of the London areas upon which the German aeroplanes dropped bombs, a voice from the crowd, addressing him, said, "What about reprisals?" As is not unusual with this anonymous oracle, the voice expressed the feeling prevalent at the moment in the public mind. The raid undoubtedly crystallised opinion in direction of paying the Germans back in their own coin. There was an influential, well-meaning section of the community who protested against this country lowering itself to the pitch of emulating German misdeeds. The sentiment is honourable and commendable. It found earlier expression when the Huns began to "gas" the Allied troops. But in the case of war, as in other relations of life, business is business. After a brief interval the British and French troops were supplied with gas-distributors, and are now elate with the consciousness that they have manufactured for them a material more deadly than that at the disposal of the original patentees. Conviction is growing even among the good people alluded to that in dealing with men capable of the murderous, cowardly acts that have placed the Germans outside the pale of civilisation, they must be fought with their own weapons. They understand no other, and impute hesitation on our part to incapacity or timidity.

MILITARY CROSS HERO KILLED.

Captain Charles Henry Linklater, of Wollstonecraft, who was recently reported missing, is now reported dead. The Red Cross Information Bureau has informed his relations that his name appears in a German death list. Captain Linklater was awarded the Military Cross for bravery on the field, officially described as follows:—"In the battle of Messines Ridge, from June 7 to June 11, he displayed great courage and splendid leadership. He constantly sent back valuable information. In spite of heavy losses, he kept his men in the highest spirits, and consolidated an excellent line. He established and visited the first advanced post at Thatched Cottage, and later on at Furse Cottage. By his gallant conduct, his tenacity, his coolness, his energy, and his devotion to duty, he set his men a magnificent example, and inspired them with the greatest confidence and affection. He also did valuable work in Gallipoli, and was mentioned in despatches on June 4, 1917."

Captain Linklater was a son of Mrs. Linklater, of Tingwall, Milson-road, Cremorne, and his widow resides at Edington, Gillies-street, Wollstonecraft.

A "Hard Times' Evening," in aid of the Engineers' Comforts Fund, was held at Goimbla, Ashfield, on Saturday. The guests paid for admission, and Mrs. Molesworth provided supper. Miss Nixon and Mr. Snodgrass sang, and Miss Molesworth whistled. Dancing, and a guessing competition completed the entertainment. The guests wore masks and fancy dresses, which caused great amusement.

ON TWO BATTLE FRONTS.

VI.—AT VIMY RIDGE.

(BY ARTHUR MASON.)

LONDON, July.

We ascended the famous field at the point where, on the morning of April 9, the Canadians stormed it, sweeping its defending army from an apparently impregnable chain of positions, by then, however, pulverised into fragments by the British bombardment—though it ought not to be forgotten that this was merely one section of the struggle for Vimy Ridge, and that all along its slopes British troops were similarly and simultaneously storming it. Once upon the summit we saw behind us, and across miles of battle-broken country, the grim trail of months of war, and in front of us the trenches of to-day, and the attack and defence of to-day, within sight and hearing by grace of the flash and roar of British batteries near at hand, the fire of responding German batteries, the hiss of shells sweeping overhead with a sound like the rush of distant trains, the thunder of their near or far explosions made visible in black sheets of mingled earth and smoke, and the crack of bursting shrapnel where, in mid-air, tiny balls of white woolly vapour broke and hung awhile, slowly expanded and slowly dissolved, and were gone. And overhead, but invisible save at some moment when one of them flew low and lay clear against the blue of the sky, aeroplanes hovered and observed or rode and fought somewhere far above us, for from out that invisible came, often, a rapid tattoo of sound like the clatter of machine guns. And, quite easily to be seen across the valley below us and beyond the woods and the trenches of the valley, Lens stood up behind its slag heaps and mine shafts, a widespread town, at its nearest to us in its suburb of Avion, taken by British assault within these present days, so that the curves of the enemy trenches we saw that afternoon from Vimy Ridge now are bent and changed, and the thrust of the enemy's line is blunted. Thus from Vimy Ridge one had not only sight of the battleground of two years past, but sight and sound of the struggle of to-day, and clear vision, too, of an area of country almost certain to be the battle-ground of days to come, as momentous in possibility and as decisive in result as any of those fields of victory by way of which, and by way of them alone, the future, we trust, has been assured.

To see Vimy Ridge was of itself something. It was the first sight one had had of this great scene of the British offensive of April, and the emotion it aroused was, in the first place, a sense of amazement that such a position, so high, so commanding, so difficult of approach, so obviously a strong tower of defence against the attack from below, should ever have been taken; and in the second place an emotion of horror at the spectacle itself of this mangled and tortured upheaval, which once had been a solid surface of earth. One's sense of the marvel of the achievement by which one after another enemy strongholds have been seized, in the face of seemingly hopeless advantage, was to be stirred again and again as one walked in those days miles of battlefields upon the heights, but never were more deeply stirred than at Vimy Ridge, so forbidding and so formidable an obstacle one saw it to have been, its apparently impregnable array of consolidated defences, and its miles of entanglements and barricades, proof, surely, against whatever valour and resolve, and the summits and the slopes of it crowning miles of the country spread about them, a seemingly unassailable domination of every road of access. Yet in that great day of April the whole vast strength of Vimy Ridge melted, as we know, first under an unparalleled orgy of bombardment, and finally under the unfaltering wave-like rush of heroic men up and across the valley and on and on—rushing and climbing men, who stormed the slopes and gained and held the summit, though Vimy Ridge from base to crest was a hell of flame set within quagmires of seething mud, and though the foothold of it had vanished, had become a fluid and shifting chaos of shattered defences, and the surface of it was transformed into depths and breadths of gaping shell holes, monstrously linked into countless and almost continuous craters and chasms. Looking at Vimy Ridge, and following the terrible path of that assault, one stands breathless even now, and though no adequate description of those hours has ever been or can ever be written, and only the half-light of the imagination remains to one for grasp of their stupendous drama.

Imagination is aided, for all that, by a visible surrounding of destruction such as can rarely have been available to any effort to recreate a battle of the past. Behind us and out of the valley road by which we had come rose the ridge of Notre Dame de Lorette, where for long months French and German strove, and battles raged, and men by the thousand fell and died. For Notre Dame de Lorette was fought inch by inch through all these months of fighting, and from opposing trenches that sometimes were separated by no more than a few yards. We had walked that day upon a strewn debris, the still remaining relics of that blood-bought field, had walked within a confusion of half filled shell holes, trampled trenches, and rusted wire and kit and arms and ammunition—and sometimes, saddest and grimmest of relics, the scattered bones of vanished men. But for Notre Dame de Lorette the days of battle are past, and by now the ridge is green from end to end under the waving grass of a new summer, and wild flowers thrust their gleams of an undying beauty from the very graves of the dead. Notre Dame de Lorette already is almost fresh and almost beautiful, but across the valley and on Vimy Ridge—what tumult of distortion, what disfigurement and deformity, what bruised and beaten shapelessness of dreadful ruin!

Vimy Ridge was once, no doubt, a smooth green slope of hill land, a cultivated and smiling fertility. It is now a horrible riot of earth, dry and hard, and yellow where it has been trodden out, dirty white where its substratum of chalk has been blown from the depths and spread upon the surface. Thus it appeared as we saw it, at all events, on a day of cloudless, steaming heat—dank heat, in which unpleasant odours rose to the sun from out this monstrous sepulchre—a chalky desolation of tossed and tumbled earth, spread into the distance as far as the eye could follow it, and not in any single yard of it other than broken and denuded and ugly. For every yard of it was maimed and mauled. Trenches and dug-outs, gun positions and wire entanglements, lay in littered masses of confusion where the giant blows of that terrible shell-fire had sought and found them inch by inch, and the blasting, scorching, shattering rain of those tons of steel, hurled upon them hour after hour, had overwhelmed and destroyed them. But more impressive than this wreckage of the carefully builded defences, more impressive even than the sights one sees, and the hints that thrust at one from the mass, hints of personal and individual tragedy—here a newly-raised cross in memory of some fallen hero, there the pathetic flotsam and jetsam of every battlefield—kits or broken rifles, or perished waterbags, or clips of unexpended cartridges, bits of boots or battered helmets—even more impressive than these, and perhaps the most impressive feature of all this vast-spread devastation, is that of the ghastly wreckage of the earth itself. For there is something truly awe-inspiring in the spectacle of those gigantic scoopings which are the shell-craters of Vimy Ridge. Seen from afar it is a spectacle of gashes and gulfs of almost overlapping and interwoven circles of excavation spreading the ridge from base to summit, and crossing the whole visible distance of it in an endless series of ascending circles. Near at hand they are seen to be the result of vast convulsions of earth that have torn the solid surface into craters which sometimes are no more than furrows and rents, but sometimes are great pits and abysses from which the earth has been hurled in tons, and now lies gigantically heaped in a disorder of mounds and spurs and blisters of soil that distort the scene into grotesque and fantastic shapes. We climbed upon those miles of upheaval, skirting the chasms or peering into their depths as we passed them by. Sometimes they are dry and dusty under their crumble of soil, sometimes foully discoloured water lies within them which it were better not to probe. We crossed the ridge through the long trench on its summit, and stood awhile among the ruins of Givenchy in the valley beyond. That itself is a melancholy picture of destruction, but it was forgotten, as much else we had seen was forgotten, as we turned and climbed and stood again upon the crest of Vimy Ridge and looked out once more upon as fearful a scene as any in the whole vast range of the havoc of war.

A WOMAN'S LETTER.

Dress and Fashion.

LONDON, July 11.

The summer season has not commenced in great strength yet, and the journeying by train is still an easy matter. The Isle of Wight is looking its loveliest. It is a paradise of flowers, and the roses, ramblers, daisies of mammoth size, delphiniums, and carnations are simply indescribable. I have never known such wealth of bloom so close to the sea.

I hardly seem in the mood to discuss clothes at this juncture, but, however small the sum the women wish to spend on dress when summer comes, a change must be made. This year we have been blessed with long spells of warm weather. The difficulty I always find in going away from home is the provision one has to make for changes of temperature. I have my winter coat and skirt with me, and all the underwear hosiery, etc., that one wears in December. Hence in buying clothes many things have to be taken into consideration.

In London the very thinnest materials have been worn, and, taking the general trend of fashion, it has never been more feminine and becoming. You get such a latitude of choice. This in itself is always alluring. In one way and another the coat frock dominates the summer gowns, which are all in one piece—the coat frock "own child" to the smarter type of overall. As for cotton voile costumes, this beautiful material has had a great success. I almost think the most successful have been the self-coloured voiles. Two floral patterns have been greatly worn. Had I been needing a new thin gown I should have ordered a grey voile, made with deep ruches, say, four or five inches wide, a very deep hem, mounted over a slip of grey or white taffetas. Voiles need a clean surface as slips, and there is nothing more suitable than taffetas.

The bodice should, preferably, be attached to the skirt, and made from any smart blouse pattern you happen to like, with some white lace and net as an under-bodice. The neck portion of blouses varies. Some wear them square, and devote their talents in stitchery to embroider the squares. In fact, all kinds of finishes are fashionable. The boat-shaped neck is becomingly made in black velvet, to which is attached a full net blouse, the narrow yoke catching together at the sides with press fasteners to keep the ruche from slipping too far down. A bunch of hand-made roses and leaves at each fastening is particularly pretty.

All manner of sports coats are worn by old and young women. Here by the sea, every woman one meets wears them; older ones in black and white stripes, younger people in any colours they like best. These coats look well over white tennis skirts. Tennis is now being played freely at all the tennis clubs, and Ryde boasts of a very good set of players. There is naturally a great lack of men, as the sons of the island are all serving in one service or the other, principally in the navy. Yachting is no more; the fleet of lovely vessels has disappeared. It makes the greatest difference to yachting centres.

Hats and Gowns.

Hats are at their shadiest and simplest aspect, a broad brim with a well tied ribbon. Other ladies wear a simple semi-sailor shape with a broad bow or rosette. Everybody who is anybody dresses with a studied simplicity. The greatest change is found in tea gowns or rest gowns, as it is the fashion to call them. I saw a model by Worth before leaving town which I thought beautiful. It was in pale grey crepe de Chine, edged at the foot with silver fringe, and at the back, between the shoulders, a hanging cape of silver guipure, like the capes worn by peeresses, coming just to the waist. For the rest, the gown hung on the simplest, softest lines. The sleeves were the shape known as angel sleeves, coming in a point almost to the hem of the gown.

SOCIAL.

A babies' clothing gift afternoon was held at the Women's Hospital, Crown-street, on Thursday afternoon; the committee, with the Matron, Miss Harrison, and the secretary, Miss Mona Daly, were the hostesses, and a most satisfactory response to the invitations sent out were received in the shape of thousands of small garments, besides £41 in cheques and bank notes. The articles collected by Mrs. Geo. Earp and by the Queen Victoria Club were included, also a welcome and much-appreciated donation of 300 articles was sent by the Girls' League of Honour, Jamberoo. Mrs. Geo. Earp arranged a musical programme. Judge Backhouse thanked the donors.

On August 25 residents of Gunnedah gladly availed themselves of the dual opportunity of helping the War Chest Funds and having an afternoon's pleasure in the bush. The "Warrawoona" woolshed presented a very gay appearance. For several days previously the workers had met at the woolshed and cleaned and decorated it. Councillor L. J. Bailey (president of the local shire council) opened the fete at noon. Flags, greenery, and freezias (from Sydney) made the place look gay. All the workers felt rewarded for their trouble and fatigue, when at a meeting held at "Warrawoona" the following Saturday the treasurer presented the balance sheet, which showed that £100 2s was the result of the effort for the War Chest. The woolshed was kindly lent by Mr. J. L. Fenton Woodburn, who acted as treasurer, and Mrs. Woodburn proved herself an efficient secretary.

A euchre evening and dance was held in the Petersham Town Hall on August 25, in aid of the Citizens' War Chest Fund. During the evening a few raffles were conducted, which resulted in £26 odd being added to the fund. It is estimated that £80 will be handed to the War Chest Fund. The tournament was organised by a committee of ladies and gentlemen, with E. C. King as hon. treasurer, and R. H. Bond and A. D. Johnston, as joint hon. secretaries. About 350 people attended.

The Dural Knitting Circle held a successful concert in aid of War Chest Day, on August 25, and as a result realised £32 7s 6d, which has been sent to the War Chest. Mr. Budden gave an address.

A fancy dress and masquerade ball was held at the Alexandria Town Hall on August 18, in aid of South Sydney Hospital, and Alexandria Red Cross Society, which was organised by the following committee, Mrs. A. E. Crawley, Miss Kane, Mrs. Beckton, Miss Ivory, Mrs. Doig, Mrs. Dadley, Mrs. Heness, Mr. Doig, Mr. A. E. Crawley, Mr. F. Ivory, Mr. Whalen, Mr. C. M'Evoy. The Mayor and Mayoress, Alderman and Mrs. Wassell, Mr. Simon Hickey, M.L.A., and Mrs. Hickey were present. It was a great success. The proceeds were handed over to the secretary of South Sydney Hospital and treasurer of Alexandria Red Cross Society, the amount being to each the sum of £14 12s 8d, by the hon. treasurer, Mrs. A. E. Crawley. Mr. H. Doig was hon. secretary.

A wedding was celebrated at St. Peter's C. of E., Wollongong, on August 8 between Daisy Irene, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rishworth, Tregeagle, and Henry Clive, second son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. E. James, of Jamesville, Goonulebah. The Ven. Archdeacon Tress, of Alstonville, was the officiating clergyman. Miss Beckie Rishworth (sister of the bride), and Miss Jessie James (sister of the bridegroom) were bridesmaids. Mr. E. Rishworth was best man, and Mr. L. Rishworth groomsman. The reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents.

A wedding was celebrated at St. Vincent's Church, Ashfield, on July 7, when Alfred John, only son of Mr. Alfred Cresswell, Peak Hill, New South Wales, was married to Clara Margaret, second eldest surviving daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Riordan, of Myroclea, Gibbs-street, Croydon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Lowe, of St. Stanislaus' College, Bathurst, assisted by Rev. Father Cullen, of St. Vincent's Ashfield. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a frock of ivory crepe-de-Chine, trimmed with ninon and orange blossoms, made with a train trimmed with orange blossoms, and a wreath and veil. A sheaf of lilies was carried. The bride was attended by one bridesmaid, Miss Vonnie Riordan (sister of the bride), who wore a pale blue charmeuse, veiled with overdress of ninon trimmed with satin ribbon, a hat of pale blue ninon and tulle, and carried a bouquet of apricot coloured roses. A cameo brooch was the gift of the bridegroom. Mr. H. H. Weston was best man. The bridegroom's present to the bride was a necklace of moonstones. The reception was held at Ashfield Town Hall. The bride and bridegroom left for their honeymoon to the caves, the bride travelling in a coat frock of brown cloth, with white hat and furs to match.

ENGAGEMENT.

The engagement is announced of Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Creer Norrie, A.I.F., second son of late Mr. F. Norrie and Mrs. Norrie, of Rose Bay, Sydney, and Jessie Frances (Bee), only child of Mr. and Mrs. F. White, of Hadley, Foxgrove-road, Beckenham, Kent, late of Toorak, Melbourne.

REAL ESTATE.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The Real Estate Market is still feeling the effects of the strike. Business this week has been quiet. It was the off week for indoor sales, and those which were held were not as successful as might have been expected if conditions were more favourable. Sales by private contract were also fewer in number than of late. Investors seemed inclined to wait until industrial strife had played its part, when no doubt business would swing back to the old path of success. In the meantime owners of property were evidently content to "bide a wee," for there is not much property offering just now, and only at pre-war prices. In the meantime auctioneers and salesmen are devoting their attention to preparing for the coming subdivision season. Already several sales are announced for this month and next, and there is every prospect of quite a number of small, but attractive, subdivisions being placed on the market during the summer months. Many of these represent the cutting up of the grounds surrounding some large residences in a fashionable suburb. Municipal taxation nowadays is on such a basis that it does not pay in every case to have large gardens surrounding an old residence. The land has increased in value of late years to such an extent that sometimes the rates for the year on the unimproved capital value basis exceed the actual income from the property, and the owners are often forced to curtail the land around the house. In this way opportunity is provided for those wishing a residential allotment to secure one in a suburb of note. The unfortunate position is that this system too often causes over-crowding in a district; something which ought to be carefully guarded against by the authorities.

The sale by Messrs. Richardson and Wrench yesterday was fairly well attended, but the list of properties brought under the hammer was a short one. The total reached only five. Four of these were in the districts of Petersham and Leichhardt, and the fifth was at Waverley. Mr. Gregg sold at cottage in Railway-street, Petersham, for £800, and was offered £325 for a dwelling in Nelson-street, Annandale. This offer is very near to the reserve, and it is just possible a sale will be effected. There was but little bidding for the remaining properties on the list. During the week the firm sold a residence in the eastern suburbs for £800, a leasehold property, consisting of a laundry in Oswald-lane, Darlinghurst, for £1100, two allotments of land, Mount Pleasant Estate, Normanhurst, at 12/6 foot, and two allotments in the Five Islands Estate, Port Kembla, at 10/6 and 15/ per foot.

Messrs. Raine and Horne this week sold a residence at Woollahra, for £2250. They also sold an allotment at Northbridge at 40/ per foot, and an allotment in the Amos Estate, Bowral, at 10/ per foot, and an allotment, Greenhills Estate, Narrabeen, at 10/ per foot.

Next Thursday Messrs. Raine and Horne will submit to auction, in their rooms, a number of city and suburban properties. The list will include 11 houses in Phillip-street, opposite St. Stephen's Church. This is a very fine property, standing in 250ft frontage. It is in the Josephson Estate. A large residence at Belmore-road, Randwick, known as Hillside, is also included in the list.

Messrs. Stanton and Son, Ltd., have sold the following properties during the week:—Brick cottage, in Eureka-street, Burwood, for £525; brick cottage, in Powys-avenue, Ashfield, for £750; brick cottage, in Bay-street, Croydon, for £695; brick cottage, in Glover-street, Mosman, for £1275; brick cottage, in Brush-road, Eastwood, for £960.

Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., report business brisk for the week in farmlet properties. A considerable number of contracts were completed, and negotiations are pending for several others. The popular Toongabbie Park Estate was the locality favoured. Building blocks also received attention, buyers making their selections at Auburn, Lidcombe, Carlton, and Wahroonga. Waterside lots were in demand at Woy Woy and Mona Vale.

Mr. G. Gifford Moore included in his sales of late the following properties:—Campbell-street, Eastwood, cottage, £337; Eric-street, Eastwood, allotment, £130; Rowe-street, Eastwood, allotment, £110; First-avenue, Eastwood, cottage, £600; poultry farm, Eastwood, £1250; corner block at Cheltenham, £513; Clanalpine-street, Cheltenham, allotment, £156; Railway-avenue, Cheltenham, allotment, £195; Lansdowne-street, Cheltenham, cottage, £700; Trelawney-street, Cheltenham, allotment, £480; Clive-road, Cheltenham, allotment, £165; Centre-road, Cheltenham, allotment, £112; Eric-street, Cheltenham, £107; cottage, North-road, Cheltenham, £772; also seven smaller allotments. Total sales, £6050.

Next Tuesday week Mr. C. H. Crammond will offer a number of properties at auction in the rooms of the association.

Messrs. Raine and Horne will, on Saturday, September 22, offer the Golf Links Estate at Bellevue Hill. This subdivision, comprising 32 allotments, is only three minutes from the Bellevue Hill-Bondi tram at the Bundarra-road stop. The land overlooks the Rose Bay golf links, and from a number of the allotments very fine views are obtainable of the harbour and Rose Bay. This is fine open building land, with an easterly aspect; is well protected from the westerly winds, is quite close to the tram, and has all modern conveniences available, such as electric light, water, gas, and sewerage.

A subdivision sale which is attracting a good deal of attention, and about which there has been a good deal of inquiry, will take place on Saturday, September 22, at North Strathfield, in the Concord district. The land will be offered by Messrs. Hugh Duff and Co. It is situated three minutes from the new North Strathfield Station, now being erected. There are business sites, as well as residential blocks, to be offered. It is the Clermont Estate which will be submitted, and on lot 15 is the old Clermont House, which will come under the hammer, with land having 100ft frontage. Land between Strathfield and Concord has of late been in good demand, and, judging by previous sales and the inquiry in this case, Clermont Estate ought to sell well.

The work of preparing plans, etc., for the subdivision sale of Cranbrook Estate at Double Bay on behalf of the Government is well advanced. This estate has been for several years State Government House. The mansion itself, and five acres of land, will be offered in one line. The beauty of the position, the convenience of access, and the character of the surroundings, are causing many to inquire for the date of this sale, which has not yet been fixed.

Messrs. Hardie and Gorman announce that the auction sale of Colonsay, Togo-parade, Leura, has been postponed till further notice.

Freehold farm lands at Moss Vale known as "Lyons," and containing an area of 213 acres, will be submitted at an early date by Messrs. Chambers and Walker. This property is about 12 miles by good road from Moss Vale, and is suited for mixed farming purposes.

On Saturday, September 15, at noon, Messrs. Scholes and Co., of Tweed Heads and Coolangatta, will offer by auction Nicoll's subdivision of Colagang Heights, comprising 24 choice banana farms, situated on the Queensland-New South Wales border, four or five miles from Currumbert station, on the Brisbane-Murwillumbah-road. From seven acres of bananas on similar land within view of this estate a gross return of £658 was obtained for the four months March to June 30, 1917.

This afternoon Messrs. Richardson and Wrench will offer elevated land opposite Concord Park. The subdivision is in the Cranley Estate, and faces Concord Park. It contains choice building sites, convenient to the Strathfield railway station, and is three minutes from the trams. There is a building covenant of £300.

Walker Estate, No. 6 subdivision, at Concord West, will come under the hammer on October 6, and Messrs. Raine and Horne will conduct the sale.

Mr. C. Crammond will offer the Kendall farm, in full working order, at Gosford, on September 15.

The Jerilderie Butter Factory will be submitted to auction by Messrs. H. Lloyd and Sons and K. Thorburn and Co., on September 19. The sale will be held at the factory. It will be offered in one lot as a going concern.

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before Sir Edmund Barton, Mr. Justice Isaacs, and Mr. Justice Rich.)

FEDERAL ESTATE DUTY.

Judgment was delivered in the appeal of the New South Wales Institution for the Deaf, Dumb, and Blind, and the Royal Alexandra Hospital against a decision of Mr. Justice Harvey in respect to a matter arising out of the will of the late Norman Shelley. The testator left £230,741, and portion of the residue of the estate was left to the appellant institutions on the death of certain life tenants, it being directed that duties and funeral and testamentary expenses should be paid out of the residue. The question was whether Commonwealth estate duty under the Act, No. 22, of 1914, was by the testator's will directed to be paid out of the residue of the estate, and Mr. Justice Harvey decided that it was so directed. The High Court held that Commonwealth estate duty was clearly outside any reasonable interpretation of the expression "testamentary expenses," Mr. Justice Isaacs pointing out that Mr. Justice Harvey's decision went beyond any heretofore recognised conception of the term.

The appeal was allowed.

Mr. Milner Stephen and Mr. H. S. Nicholas, instructed by Messrs. Stephens, Jacques, and Stephen, appeared for the appellants; and Mr. Knox, K.C., and Mr. Maughan, instructed by Messrs. Allen, Allen, and Hemsley, for the respondents.

BEQUEST TO SOCIALIST PARTY.

The Court delivered its reserved judgment on the question of the validity of certain gifts to the Australian Socialist Labour party, under the will of Nicholas Van Kerkwoorde. The appellants were Amelia Van Kerkvoorde and Ethel Hedley, widow and daughter of the testator respectively, and the respondent, James Owen Moroney, secretary of the Socialist Labour party. The testator bequeathed 10 per cent. of the income of his estate to the party during the lifetime of his widow, 20 per cent. during the lifetime of his daughter after his widow's death, and on the death of the daughter left the whole of the estate to the party. The validity of the gifts was disputed on the ground of uncertainty, but the objection as to the gifts of income was not pressed by the appellants.

Mr. Justice Barton said it was fairly clear that the testator had applied his property to well-defined purposes, and his Honor was of the opinion that there was no uncertainty about the bequest.

Mr. Justice Isaacs and Mr. Justice Rich concurred, and the appeal was dismissed.

Mr. Knox, K.C., Mr. D. S. Edwards, and Mr. Monahan appeared for the appellants, and Dr. Waddell for the respondent. Counsel for both parties were instructed by Messrs. Crichton Smith and Waring.

(Before Mr. Justice Duffy.)

QUINOLOGIST CASE.

The case was concluded in which Albert Edward Cochram, of Perth (W.A.), brought a suit against Theodore Charles Trautwein and David Price, with regard to the ownership of the racehorse Quinologist. The plaintiff alleged that he was partner with Trautwein in the ownership of the horse, and that Trautwein induced him to consent to the sale at auction of Quinologist, and afterwards purchased it from the buyer, David Price, the sale not being a bona-fide one, and Price merely buying as dummy for Trautwein. Plaintiff asked for a declaration that he was still partner in the ownership of the horse, and claimed £5000 damages as an alternative.

Mr. Windeyer, K.C., Mr. Maughan, and Mr. Barton, instructed by Messrs. Windeyer and Williams, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Shand, K.C., Mr. Innes, K.C., and Mr. Mason, instructed by Messrs. Barry and Norris, for the defendants.

Mr. Norris, of the firm of Barry and Norris, solicitors for the defendants, was called to give evidence as to what took place at Mr. Shand's chambers on Wednesday, when Trautwein and the witness, James Jacobs, were there. Mr. Norris bore out Trautwein's evidence of the previous day, stating that Jacobs had persisted that he was at the sale of Quinologist, and that the police or anybody else who might be brought to contradict him must be mistaken. Though Jacobs, on being put in the box, had admitted that he was not present at the sale in question, Mr. Norris affirmed that just before, outside the court, Jacobs had still persisted in his original story.

"I am not satisfied," said his Honor, "that the purchase by the defendant Price was not bona fide, or that defendant Trautwein had any interest in that purchase, and I am not satisfied that the defendant Trautwein has been guilty of any of the fraudulent acts or statements imputed to him in the statement of claim. Mr. Maughan urged that, notwithstanding these findings of fact, the plaintiff would be entitled to judgment, because the defendant Trautwein had committed a breach of his fiduciary duty to the plaintiff by negotiating with the defendant Price for a resale to him before the plaintiff had signified his assent to the purchase by Price, and by subsequently buying from Price after that assent had been given. The answer to that contention is that it is not raised on the pleadings, and I am not disposed to allow an amendment at such a late stage. Had the pleadings permitted such a contention to be raised, and had any partnership existed between the defendants, an issue which I do not think it necessary to determine, I should have held that the negotiation and subsequent purchase by Trautwein did not constitute any breach of the duty expressed in the equitable principles stated by Mr. Maughan, and illustrated in the cases cited by him.

"The conduct of both defendants prior to and in the course of this action," added his Honor, "has filled my mind with suspicion as to their honesty and truthfulness, and I will not allow them any costs."

Judgment was entered for defendants without costs.

An application for stay of proceedings was refused.

In answer to Mr. Windeyer, his Honor said that if his consent was needed to a prosecution for perjury he would give it.

COMMONWEALTH ARBITRATION COURT.

The Deputy Registrar, at the Royal Society's Rooms, heard objections by J. C. Williamson, Ltd., and others to the registration of the Actors' Union of Australasia. Mr. D. Guihen appeared for the union, and Mr. Fawl for the objectors. Evidence was called, and the case stands part heard.

SUPREME COURT.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury of four.)

Watt v Malouf.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by Mr. George Croaker, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Blacket, K.C., and Mr. Patrick, instructed by Messrs. M'Coy and M'Coy, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Peter Bell Johnston Watt, trading as the Structural Engineering Company, against Joseph George Malouf to recover £88 12s 8d, claimed by plaintiff to be due to him by defendant for certain goods supplied in connection with the erection of a picture show building at Balmain.

The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff in the full amount claimed.

A LOST FUR COAT.

Hoskins v Coles.

Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by Mr. George Croaker, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. O'Reilly, instructed by Messrs. Dawes and Herford, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Jennie Meek Hoskins against C. Coles, furrier, to recover compensation for the alleged detention of a full-sized Russian grey squirrel fur coat, which plaintiff had placed in the hands of defendant for repair. She claimed a return of the coat, or its value, which she estimated at over £100, and £10 for its detention. Defendant paid into court £25 as sufficient to meet the claim, and gave evidence that when the coat was missed he obtained a full description of the article from plaintiff and placed the matter in the hands of the police.

The case is part heard.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury of four.)

ACTION AGAINST A CONSTABLE.

UNSWORTH v BAXTER.

Mr. H. G. Edwards and Mr. Hardwick, instructed by Mr. J. B. Moffatt, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by the Crown Solicitor (Mr. J. V. Tillett) for the defendant. The action was one brought by Walter Unsworth, wharf-labourer, against William Julius Baxter, police constable, for assault. Particulars of the case have already been published. The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff, with damages £10. His Honor refused a certificate for costs.

ALLEGED LIBEL.

HOGG v. "BATHURST NATIONAL ADVOCATE."

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Markell, instructed by Mr. John M'Phillamy, of Bathurst (by his agents, Messrs. Iceton, Faithfull, and Maddock), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. L. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Mr. F. B. Kenny, of Bathurst (by his agents, Messrs. Fulton and Lowe), for the defendants. This was an action brought by Elsie Hogg against the "Bathurst National Advocate" Newspaper Printing and Publishing Company, Ltd., to recover compensation for alleged libel. Plaintiff's case was that before the cause of action arose she was a duly qualified nurse, and had been appointed matron of the Bathurst District Hospital. On June 5 the defendants in their newspaper, known as the "National Advocate," published an article under the heading "Ugly Rumours and Some Facts," in which it was stated that a man in an unconscious state had been found on Vale-road, and that a representative of the "Advocate" had been informed by the police that the man had died from heart failure. The article then proceeded:—"This statement to the Press was erroneous, because the man did not expire until the Saturday night following. Some very ugly rumours are abroad in Bathurst concerning this particularly sad case, and it is the duty of the hospital authorities to sheet home the alleged neglect to the guilty party or parties, or, if there be no neglect, to dispel the rumour at their next meeting. The rumour is that the police, having pronounced the man dead, the body was conveyed to the hospital, and placed in the morgue without examination by a doctor. Next day one of the officers had occasion to visit the morgue, and noticed the body move. The scare caused mention of the incident, with the result that the man was removed from the morgue to a ward in the hospital. After lingering from Thursday until Saturday night the patient died. . . . If the body of the unconscious man was allowed to lie on the cold slab of the hospital morgue for several hours of a bitterly cold evening of May 24 the exposure and inattention were enough to cause his death. In fact deceased, who was over 70 years of age, must have had an iron constitution to have lingered from Thursday until Saturday night, after such alleged neglect." Plaintiff complained that the article was intended to convey that she, as matron, was incompetent and negligent, and was guilty of gross neglect in the care, control, and management of the hospital, and unfit to hold that position. She further stated that the charge was without foundation, and had injured her credit and reputation. Damages were laid at £2000. Defendant pleaded not guilty.

In the course of her evidence plaintiff said that when the man referred to was brought to the hospital he was in an unconscious state, and breathing heavily. He was at once taken to one of the wards, undressed, and put to bed, and warmed with hot water bottles. Stimulants were also administered, and when the doctor arrived he approved of the treatment, and ordered its continuance. These instructions were carried out until the patient's death.

Mr. Campbell said that there was no suggestion in the article complained of that the statements made in it were true, but that certain rumours had been circulated which demanded inquiry, in order to ascertain whether there was any foundation for them or not.

Plaintiff, continuing her evidence, said there was absolutely no truth in the rumours referred to. In cross-examination she said that the committee of the hospital held an inquiry after the article appeared, and expressed themselves satisfied that plaintiff's statements were true. A report of this meeting afterwards appeared in the "Advocate."

The case stands part heard.

ADMIRALTY COURT.

(Before the President, Sir William Cullen.)

THE TURUL.

CONFISCATION REFUSED.

Mr. H. E. Manning, instructed by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor, appeared in support of an application for the condemnation and confiscation of the Hungarian steamer Turul. Mr. Watt, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Company, appeared for the master and owners of the vessel. The case has been before the Court on several occasions, when argument was heard on various points involved, and judgment was now delivered.

His Honor, after reciting the facts connected with the arrival of the vessel three days after the outbreak of war between Great Britain and Germany and its subsequent seizure, said that the grounds relied upon by the Crown in support of the claim for confiscation of the ship were that the ship was not prevented from leaving the port by circumstances beyond its control, that the reasons alleged by the master in his statement of facts giving an account of his conversation with the officer of Customs were insufficient, and that it was his own fault that a pass was not issued, inasmuch as he omitted to furnish information necessary for its issue, namely, to what port he wished to proceed, and the route he proposed to adopt. It was clear from the master's own version of the conversation that he was apprehensive about the risk of capture by French, Russian, or Japanese men-of-war in the Pacific Ocean; that he wished to consult the ship's agents, and get into communication with the owners before replying definitely to the question respecting what port he would go to in the event of such a pass issuing; and that he thought that "if he could only obtain a passport which would not only be effective and valid against other than British ships his detention would be occasioned by force majeure within the meaning of the Hague Convention Articles 1 and 2, and that he would in such a case probably prefer detention under the Convention rather than the risk of capture as lawful prize."

This was a case where the Crown sought condemnation on the ground that, though it was willing to accord the master the benefit contemplated by the Convention, he had forfeited that concession by his own conduct. But this presupposed that his movements were free from restraint, and that if he cared to leave, whether with or without a pass, he could go so. In view of the seizure and continued retention of possession, something more was needed to establish this than the mere issue of a proclamation in general terms, or a mere inquiry unaccompanied by any offer after the proclamation had become exhausted. If the ship had been free to leave, he should have had small difficulty in concluding that the master was not prepared to take advantage of his opportunity. But that question did not arise if he was all the time under force majeure. For the reasons stated, he thought the case for the Crown had not been made out, and the motion was dismissed. He made no order as to costs. The dismissal of the motion was not to prejudice the liberty to apply already reserved under previous orders.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

INTERPRETATION OF WILL.

Mr. T. P. Power appeared for the plaintiffs, Frederick William Dorhauer and Albert Ferdinand Dorhauer; and Mr. Wickham for the defendant, Otto Christian Dorhauer. Mr. W. H. Drew instructed counsel for all parties. This was an originating summons arising out of the will of the late Heinrich Christian Dorhauer, of Queen-street, Woollahra. The Court was asked to decide as to certain executory gifts. His Honor declared that the shares of the children, on surviving Mrs. Dorhauer, became absolutely vested.

INTERIM INJUNCTION.

Lindsay, of Katoomba) applied, ex parte, on behalf of Catherine Folkes, for an interim injunction restraining Johanna Spark from proceeding with an ejectment action, in Common Law, relating to premises in Katoomba-street, Katoomba. His Honor granted the injunction, as asked, for one week.

MR. MUTCH BOUND OVER.

The charge against Thomas Davies Mutch, M.L.A., of using insulting words was concluded yesterday at the Water Police Court. Mr. C. N. Payten, S.M., in giving his reserved decision, said that the defendant was charged with using insulting words in the Domain at a public meeting when thousands of people were present. The words alleged to have been used were most insulting to the police, to the magistracy, and to the capitalistic class. The correctness of the police shorthand note of the words used was substantially corroborated by other police, and by independent evidence. He would accept the evidence of the police and other witnesses for the prosecution as the correct version of the matter, and he would convict the defendant. He did not propose to fine defendant, but he bound him over in £30 to be of good behaviour for 12 months. Defendant was ordered to pay £2/18/ costs.

FAIR RENTS COURT.

Mr. J. Jamieson, registrar, yesterday decided the following cases in the Fair Rents Court:—

184 St. John's-road, Glebe, a brick house of four rooms and kitchen, land 14 x 140, assessed at £10 per foot, present cost to erect £410. The building was erected some 50 years ago; its estimated present value is £120. The present rent of 16s per week was undisturbed.

No. 4 Campbell-street, Newtown, described as a very old single-fronted cottage of five rooms and kitchen, built on land 16 x 120, assessed at £7 per foot, estimated present cost to erect structure £525, less £200 allowed for depreciation. The Court reduced the present rent, 16s a week, to 12s 6d.

No. 8 Knox-street, Double Bay, a brick cottage in terrace, containing three rooms and kitchen, built on a 15½ft frontage of land, assessed at £5 per foot, present rent 20s per week, present value £306. The fair rent was determined at 16s per week for 12 months.

No. 10 Riley-street, Woolloomooloo, an old brick house, built 80 years ago, contains four rooms and kitchen, erected on land 16 x 72, assessed at £16 per foot, estimated cost to erect structure £420, less depreciation of £210, present rent 20s per week. The Court fixed the fair rent at 18s per week for 12 months.

ON THE LAND.

A BIT OF PIONEERING.

(BY E. S. SORENSON.)

It was wet weather when we arrived on the new selection; in fact, the wet weather arrived before we did. It caught us on the road, and made a week's hard journey of what should have been only three short days. We got bogged every chain or so, and between times, in zigzagging through narrow spaces, we got stuck against trees. At one spot the top of the stump caught against the axle bed. Cutting that stump down under the waggon, half lying in water the while, was one of the little experiences that blind one at the time to the pleasures of pioneering. We were only a mile from our destination then. We had two hours to do it before sundown; but the sun beat us. A miserably wet night set in, and still the dark line of the scrubby creek where we were to make our home was some distance in front of us. The bush has always appeared cheerful and beautiful to me, but it looked very melancholy that night. In the clear spaces the grass was waist deep, and where the trees were thick the water poured from the drooping leaves and ran in gurgling streams down the gum boles, forming white masses of froth at the roots. It was a melonhole flat, and from a thousand holes came the chorus of exultant frogs.

At last we got bogged on the edge of a small swamp, a hundred yards from the creek bank. The team was too weary to pull out, and as it was too dark and wet to do anything by way of helping them we unyoked and camped. We made a shelter with a small tarpaulin, under which we hung a lantern, and after much patient effort got a fire going. Our beds we made on the ground, first making a dry foundation with all the bags we could get hold of. After the wearying day we had experienced, the comfort we felt in that primitive camp, with the little fire burning cheerily at our feet and the rain beating incessantly on our roof, was never surpassed in the series of dwellings that we afterwards built. In the morning it was still raining. We kept to our shelter till the afternoon, when we examined our surroundings, and decided to make our camp where we were. A quarter of a mile away on our left was a rise, heavily covered with spotted gum, where we intended to build the house. The spot had no definite name then; it was Myrtle Creek; but the locality has since been named Rappville, after one of our neighbours who settled there about the same time. The North Coast railway runs through that country, and there is a station quite close to the place where bad weather and soft ground fixed the site of our temporary homestead.

These were things undreamed of then. There was nothing but trees and grass for miles upon miles around us, rioting everywhere in wild luxuriance. We shot ducks in the waterhole from the tent door; so many were obtained nearabouts at odd times that in a couple of weeks we had a small cask filled with pickled duck. We shot kangaroos and dingoes in the evenings and on moonlight nights from the fireside. Emus stalked close by us as we sat at meals, attracted by the novelty of our camp; and sometimes they were drawn from far off by the strange sounds of hammering and chopping. From the rise at night time came the wailing of the stone curlews, and from the creek side the cry of the mopoke. In this sort of solitude the bush impresses one deeply who goes into it for the first time, but it is no less haunting to one who is bush-bred, only he appreciates the charms of his environment and is tolerant of its loneliness. Pretty well everyone who takes up selection life in new country knows this phase at the beginning, and to most of them in after years it is a cherished memory. There is something to atone for the roughing that one has to go through that is missed when the country about has become thickly populated.

Our first habitation was built entirely of galvanised iron, a single-room place about 20ft by 12ft, the furniture of which consisted of three bunks, a fixed table, and a fixed stool—which was merely a length of round wood laid on two forked uprights. Outside, facing the only door, was an open fireplace with a bark roof where we did our cooking. Nearby was a sapling yard, neither round nor square, but built so as to utilise the few trees there for posts. Everything was temporary, the whole establishment being completed in three or four days. Still, we were domiciled there for about twelve months. The initial work was splitting posts and rails and fencing in a small paddock. Until that was completed our stock roamed pretty well where they liked. Sometimes it took us all day to find a horse, and now and again some of our bullocks were lost for a week. They could go miles in any direction, and as they seldom kept together, and wandered in various directions at different times, we never knew where to look for them. The completion of the paddock saved that work, but as the grass grew waist-deep on the flat, and was nearly always wet in the morning, and water lay in little holes all over it a good part of the year, catching the generally-useful horse, which occasionally objected to being caught, was an early exercise that nobody enjoyed. Ringbarking was considered an "improvement" at this time, so we had several hundred acres to ring. This was light work, and enabled us to find dozens of sugarbags. A few months after the ringing process the selection begins to look bedraggled, lonely, and miserable. Trees are bare and ghostly white; long strips of bark swing in the wind, and dead limbs and bark encumber the ground in all directions. It saddens one to look at the dead white trunks, and to see nothing but crows, hawks, and eagles perched in the leafless tops that erstwhile diffused the sweetest perfume over the land, and called brilliant-hued parrots in millions to feast among the honey-laden blossoms. And the sawmills are calling for that timber now.

Mosquitos came in swarms from the holes at night, necessitating the burning of ordure in the room alongside our bunks. 'Possums were other nocturnal visitors. They scampered about the roof of our domicile, purred in friendly fashion through the gaps in the gables, and sometimes ventured inside and explored the table for crumbs. Snakes, centipedes, and scorpions were the only things we had to fear, and a careful inspection of our bedding was made every night before turning in. Even with this precaution we found a snake now and again coiled under the boxes when we had occasion to shift them.

THE WOOL TRADE.

PAVING THE WAY FOR APPRAISING.

...t of the preliminary work in connection with the acquisition of the wool production for the 1917-18 season has been done, and the way paved for appraising wools during the season with even greater measure of success than was achieved from January to June last. The expert advisory committee has been sitting in Melbourne, and has recommended various improvements in connection with the acquisition scheme, including a revision of the costing table with some additional types. The initial appraisement dates are not yet announced, and there has been no further mention of the policy of growers holding back their wool in the country. The New South Wales railways are again carrying wool to Sydney, and the consignments, as they come to Darling Harbour, are being carted to, and properly handled in, the wool stores. There has been a fair quantity of wool received by rail during the past three or four days, and there is every prospect of this increasing next week. If there had been no dislocation through the strike a large quantity of wool would have been received in store of late. There was every inducement to growers to consign their wools as shorn in order to take their place in the early appraisements. They were responding in a marked manner, and there was every probability of an excellent representation of early-shorn western and north-western clips in the initial catalogues for the season. This forward movement was arrested through the strike on the railways, and now it is being retarded by a strike of some of the employees in the wool stores. The men have not ceased work in all the stores, and voluntary workers have taken up the places of some of the others in the stores where vacancies were caused by the strike. Although this disorganised state of affairs does not obstruct the consignments despatched from the country being duly received, weighed and stored, it has lessened the quantity coming into store, and tends to delay the dates of appraisements, as well as congesting stocks in the stores during the height of the season. The selling brokers have had circulars printed, urging growers to hold back their wool until conditions again become normal, as requested by the Central Wool Committee; but Sydney wool receipts during the past three or four days indicate a disposition by growers to take advantage of the improved railway facilities, and trust to the selling brokers looking after the interests of their respective clients in abnormal, as well as normal times. Up to yesterday, over 41,000 bales had been received in store since July 1, over 31,000 bales by rail, and nearly 10,000 bales by boat. These wools, allowing for some to come from Brisbane for treatment at the wool scours from last season's pool, leave, with local fellmongered scoured wools, a very fair quantity for appraisement, even if the first appraisement for the season were fixed for next week.

AMERICA'S WOOL NEEDS.

The question of wool storage will be an important one this season, owing to the insufficiency of freight for lifting last season's pool, in conjunction with the ensuing season's acquisition. This will be influenced to an extent by supplies that are released or sold by the War Contracts Department to Allies, like Japan and the United States; who can ship wool from Australia with less risk, and to nearer ports than can either the British or French Governments. America has come in as an Ally since the balance of last season's clip was acquired by the British Government, and its wool needs are so pressing that there is every probability of them being satisfied in a way that will fill their requirements on the one hand, and facilitate this season's acquisition on the other. If a good proportion of last season's pool is released for American war requirements it will relieve the stores of stocks, and make way for the new season's clip to be dealt with without congestion in the woolbrokers' and other stores in interstate centres. The United States is playing such a huge part in finance in the prosecution of the war, and is aiding in supplies of war material so liberally that any arguments used by America in connection with wool direct from Australia commands the utmost respect. It appears that Great Britain and France have sought to join in with the United States in a co-operative scheme for the purchase of war supplies at reasonable or advantageous prices in America; and what wool-users in the United States say is that if they are allowed to join in it should be conditional on the principle of "give and take," the British Government to reciprocate by allowing similar opportunities to purchase raw materials and other supplies that must be obtained by America in British dominions. This will mean, say they, freer access to a variety of textile raw materials controlled or owned by Great Britain that have important war uses; chief of which is wool; but they also mention jute, of prime importance, as well as Egyptian cotton and flax.

A FAIR DEAL IN PRICES.

It is, however, with wool that we are herein concerned; and particularly in so far as supplies are to be drawn from Australia. Wool textile journals urge that not only must the United States representatives upon the co-operative purchasing board, or other responsible Government officials, see that adequate supplies of wool and other raw material are forthcoming to meet their war demands, but also to see that they are supplied to the United States Government, or manufacturers engaged upon Government work, at prices on a parity with the prices paid by Great Britain or her Government contractors. In support of that contention the "Textile World Journal" (New York) says: —"It will not be unreasonable for our Government authorities to insist upon being given relatively as free access to Australian wools as the British Government is given to our copper, iron, grain, and meats, and at relatively as low prices. If the British Government is allowed to buy these supplies at the same price as the United States, then our representatives reasonably may demand that they shall not pay more than 55 per cent. in excess of pre-war prices in Australia for the wools they obtain there, assuming that this basis is to prevail for the coming season on British purchases. Presumably the British authorities would not listen to any arrangement permitting the resale of Australian wools by our Government to manufacturers at less than prevailing prices to English manufacturers, but this is a point of minor importance, and one that safely can be left to our Government representatives for fair adjustment. It is inconceivable, however, that the British Government, which is the owner of the Australian clip, could expect to sell its wool to an Ally for war use at a profit."

LIBERAL INTERPRETATION OF WAR USE.

That was written prior to the acquisition of the current season's clip. The price assumed is, however, the same as last statistical year, and the other conditions are practically the same. When the British Government acquired the balance of last season's clip it was stated that any wools not used for military purposes sold at a profit such profit should be equally divided between the British Government and the woolgrowers. Exactly what is meant by "wool to an Ally for war use" is explained by the following:—"Of vital moment, however, is the definition of war use of wool that may be obtained from Australia. Reasoning upon the assumption that we shall be deprived of access to New Zealand and English wools, which most closely fit the specifications of both British and United States' uniform cloths, it will be quite reasonable for our representatives in negotiations upon the subject to insist that the volume of wool allowed be allotted upon a replacement basis, and not be limited by its actual use in Government goods. The quantity of wool annually required to meet our Government demands, minus the excess of imports for the preceding year over the normal annual imports prior to the war, should be the annual quantity of Australian wool for which we ought to qualify. The volume of the domestic clip may be overlooked, for it has varied but little for several years, and the basis suggested has the advantage of eliminating the abnormal imports during 1914 and 1915. The fact that this basis would qualify us to share in the Australian clip to an extent about equal to our large imports during those two years is due to war demands consequent to our entering the European conflict at Great Britain's side."

FAVOURABLE FACTORS ALL ROUND.

Those are details that the Government may safely be left to decide between them; the point of interest to Australian growers and the trade is that large quantities of wool are needed by American users at the prices acquired by the British Government. The United States Government is as much concerned in preventing wool reaching the enemy, or being held by enemy agents for after-war purposes, as we are; and that if large quantities are supplied to America the stocks so released will facilitate the current season's acquisition. There can be no doubt that if the Government grants wool supplies the United States will find the freights to get it across the Pacific without undue delay. The same may be said with regard to Japan. The Japanese are able to buy wool tops and noils; and if they can secure wool, greasy and scoured, they, doubtless, would be glad to ship their requirements before the stores are congested by December or January next. These are factors that go to show that in spite of submarines wool can go out to Allies at a minimum of risk, that they indirectly support the prosecution of thewar, and aid in the disposal of the season's production at a minimum of cost for storage and other charges.

WOOL RECEIPTS.

Now that the railways are again receiving wool consignments for trucking to Sydney, fair quantities are coming forward. During the week 6830 bales arrived at Darling Harbour railway station, and passed into the stores of the various selling brokers. There were no arrivals of wool by boat. The quantity received by rail was easily handled; Dalgety and Company saying:—"Such wool is being carted from the railways to the brokers' stores by volunteer labour, and brokers are experiencing no trouble in handling the wool once it is in store. In our particular instance, our own men remained loyal during the strike, and in other stores where this is not the case volunteer labour is being employed."

The quantity for the week and for the season to date, by rail and boat compares with the corresponding period last year as follows:—

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1917.

THE WAR OF ENDURANCE.

The German Government was hardly fortunate in the choice either of the man or of the occasion when it authorised Admiral von Scheer to make a statement on the prospects of his countrymen in the war. The memory of the battle of Jutland will not inspire the German people with confidence in any information coming from their official guides. Admiral von Scheer was not responsible for the exaggerations and omissions of the official reports, but his name is associated with the grossest deception of the many practised on the German public. He says, now, that the British report admits that his fleet was not defeated, which is true enough if he means that it successfully avoided annihilation. But the whole of his interview is an admission that it was defeated in its main purpose. The "enterprise directed north" was intended to break through the British blockade and to cut a way for German ships to reach the open sea. Throughout the following year the British patrols have held their positions and done their work without interference from the German fleet. There have been mistakes in the management of the blockade; the Germans have used both submarines and mines with grave results, but neither the mistakes nor the successes were in any way affected by the action in which Admiral von Scheer distinguished himself. With some reason he might claim to have saved his ships from the British to fight against the Russians. But victories against the Russians are very little consolation for a people who have long recognised their real enemies to be the British and the French. The attention of the readers of this interview is concentrated on the decisive factors of the war, and these are to be found in the armies of the West, in the submarines and the fleets opposed to them, and in the peoples behind the fleets and armies. Admiral von Scheer is confident that in a contest of endurance the German people will be superior. He is repeating a popular belief which was expressed by the most learned authorities in Germany before the war in their contempt for the military qualities of either the British or the French. A German who, in the first week in September, 1917, reiterates one of the great national dogmas, must have forgotten how many confident prophecies were brought to the ground during the week of which this is the anniversary. Three years ago saw the German prophecies put to a decisive test. They had thought to encircle the French and the British armies and bring all the forces of civilisation to surrender in a greater Sedan. At the Marne they were thrown back in a battle in which the national strategy of the French was opposed to their own. The plans on which they had relied were defeated, and the prizes they had hoped for were denied them. There was an end of their visions of a short and joyful war in which France and Belgium would be overwhelmed by misery and devastation, but Germany would go scot free. The reality of their first disappointment was not admitted until the Allies, with inferior forces, had withstood countless assaults at Ypres. Since then the Germans have seen the gradual disappearance of all the hopes founded on a long and superior preparation. They have seen the French develop a system of tactics superior to their own, and the British improvise a gigantic military system equal to the needs of a modern war. But their long training in a sense of superiority has never deserted them. In spite of all the events of these three years they still believe that Germany has a monopoly of patriotism, and that their enemies will surrender if compelled to submit to the same trials as themselves.

The French Minister for War stated one of the conditions under which this contest of endurance must be faced by the Allies in his speech on the last offensive. The Allied peoples are accustomed to freedom of criticism, to a share in the government, and to the right of changing the policy of their rulers if they see fit. Patriotism requires much more of them than of a German when they are asked to bear disappointment with equanimity and to endure continued and heavy losses rather than submit. But M. Painleve added that the spirit in which that extra strain has been borne is the final vindication of democracy. France has preserved the national union through all the trials which followed her first great victory in a manner almost incredible to those who judged her by the political and social struggles of the past half-century. There have been strikes, but none against the war policy of the Government, and even the economic strikes have not been so numerous as those of Germany or Great Britain. There have been many attacks on successive Governments, but except from an insignificant minority there has been no suggestion that France should make a compromise peace. The labour leaders, who were justly called pacificists before the war, are now clearest in their demands for a surrender of the conquered provinces. Admiral von Scheer is not precise enough to say whether he expects the British people ever to be reduced to the hardships which have failed to break the spirit of the French. There is no proof that the submarines, serious as their destruction has been, have deprived them of any of the necessaries or the comforts of life. Like many of his countrymen he still seems to believe that peace will be obtained either through terror produced by air raids, through avarice frightened by submarines, or through weariness. There have been disturbances by which the Germans may have been tempted to judge the whole nation as they judged the Dominions before the war. But the counter manifestations have been overlooked or concealed by the German authorities. They never will realise that each air raid adds to the number of men and women who would see the whole country perish rather than make a compromise peace. They cannot understand that their practice of murdering civilians has filled thousands of men and women with that passion for justice with which the submarine outrages have inspired the Seamen's Union. Fortunately the British character is now understood by the French. They know at last that the merchant absorbed in making a profit would sacrifice his life and his wealth rather than see Germany victorious, and that the striker would give up his eight hours to fight beside him. The German is slow to forget what his professors have taught him, but three years of war are other than professors. Those years have taught him that British obstinacy is equalled by British patriotism and military capacity.

THE ONE AND ONLY ISSUE.

We are now in the sixth week of the great strike, and it must be plain to the leaders of it that they are both beaten and discredited. When the strike is settled it will be settled in one way, and one way only, and that is the way laid down by the Government at the commencement of hostilities—by the men going back to work on the conditions that obtained when they ceased work. No matter how long it may take the misguided strikers to realise this, every day that passes brings us nearer to that settlement. It is true that they are attempting to use the power of the whip upon the community at large, but they are chiefly whipping themselves, and their own wives and their own children are the greatest sufferers. This position will become the more aggravated the longer the strike lasts, and whilst the community will be able to hold out against terrorism the strikers will sooner or later find themselves compelled to accept the identical terms which are offered to them to-day. A blind faith in blind leaders will not help them. A stubborn spirit will only make their case worse. A man's loyalty to his union cannot weigh against the loyalty of the great mass of the people to their country. At a time like this, when we are fighting for our very existence—for the right to live as free men in a free world, as Mr. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labour, puts it—it is monstrous treason to hold up the wheels of industry, to keep back the output of our mines which Great Britain and her Allies need for munition purposes, and to prevent the despatch of reinforcements and supplies for our soldiers at the front. One of the leaders of this strike has compared the man who "scabs on his mates" to Benedict Arnold, who was a traitor to his country, but the real traitors in Australia to-day are those who, in organising this gigantic upheaval, are "scabbing" on their mates in the trenches. These men have not even the excuses that Benedict Arnold had. No attacks had been made upon them by the Government or the people; they had been subjected to no ignominy—except the ignominious defeat of their political party at the general elections. Nor had any attack been made, nor was any intended, upon trades unionism. Yet they have deliberately put this diabolical plot into execution. And the best answer to them comes from their own followers, thousands of whom, thoroughly ashamed of these leaders, have done the wise and patriotic thing and gone back to work, heartily sorry that they ever allowed themselves to be made tools of by men with political ends to serve. The whole thing represents an attempt to wrest the control of the country out of the Government's hands. Having failed to gain that control by constitutional means at the elections these men are now seeking to gain it by unconstitutional means. In a word, they are rebels.

In this strike there is one issue and one issue only; and it was well stated by Professor Irvine, of the University of Sydney, in the letter published in yesterday's "Herald." "It has nothing to do with the card system or any other grievance, real or imaginary. The issue is whether the Australian people are going to have an orderly and decent communal life or whether they are going to hand themselves over to anarchy, which is synonymous with the autocracy of irresponsible and constantly changing groups." But when Professor Irvine, having stated the position in these terms, begs that the door may not be closed against all compromise and mediation, we confess that we have some difficulty in following him. How can the State be a party to any compromise so long as its authority is defied? If the Government does not govern absolutely it does not govern at all. We have already seen, in the case of Queensland, what dangers lie in half-government—government by the properly constituted authority and government by the unions at the same time, and we sincerely hope that we shall not come to such a pass in this State. All that is asked is that the laws of the land shall be obeyed. Let the men return to work, and then their grievances, real or imaginary, will be inquired into; but there can be no inquiry, there can be no compromise, until they do so return. No good can be done by any attempt at mediation now. The public stands sound and solid behind the Government in this matter, and the holding of so-called public meetings with the object of securing a "satisfactory basis of settlement" is simply mischievous, because they resolve themselves into meetings of the strikers who, in applauding their own spokesmen, are deluded into the belief that they are winning. They cannot win. There can only be one satisfactory basis of settlement, and that, as Professor Irvine points out, is one of order and decency as opposed to anarchy. There have been times in history when, confronted with extraordinary circumstances, Governments have been compelled to go beyond the law for the sake of the preservation of their country, and we are all familiar with the Cromwellian dictum that "if nothing should ever be done but what is 'according to law,' the throat of the nation may be cut while we send for some to make a law!" When matters of necessity come, Governments are within their rights in applying, and it is their bounden duty to apply, extraordinary remedies, if such be necessary for the good order and well-being of the State. But that is not the case here. The laws are here, and all the Government asks is that they shall be observed. The strikers have stated the terms on which they will return to work, and the Government, backed up by the Parliament of the country, has stated the terms on which it will allow the men to return to work—for those of them, that is, for whom work now remains. The issue is clear-cut. It is inevitable that one or other side must back down in the long run, and it must be apparent to all that the side to back down will not be the Government. Otherwise we would simply be reducing constitutional government to a farce and handing over the control of the country to an unknown body of irresponsible men outside. Private employers may, for reasons of expediency, agree to mediation and compromise, but the position is very different in the case of a Government. In the stand it has rightly taken the Government of New South Wales is backed up not only by the Parliament of the State, but by all the best thought in all the States of the Commonwealth. As to the attitude of the Federal Government, the Prime Minister has used the words:—"It is not a strike, but a revolt." As such it must be met. It means, as Mr. Justice Heydon said on Thursday, in cancelling the registration and the preference clause in the award of the Trolly, Draymen, and Carters' Union, owing to what is known as the "black" doctrine, a state of civil war. This strike is the blackest thing in the history of Australia.

PERSONAL.

A cable received yesterday gave the news that Second-lieutenant William Buckingham, of the Royal Flying Corps, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Buckingham, of Stanmore, had been promoted to the rank of captain. His brother, Second-lieutenant Reginald Buckingham, has also been promoted to the rank of first-lieutenant. The former of these officers has been operating in France for many months, but is now serving as a flying instructor in England. The latter, having lately recovered from an attack of malarial fever, after distinguished service in Salonica, has now rejoined his squadron. In June last Captain W. Buckingham was awarded the Military Cross, and his brother the French Croix de Guerre.

A visitor from Japan, Mr. Keiso Yoshino, secretary Bureau of Electrical Exploitations and Bureau of Special Investigations, Ministry of Communications, Tokyo, called on the town clerk yesterday, accompanied by Mr. E. W. Foxall, of the Japanese Consulate-General.

Mr. E. S. Edwards, M.A., has been elected president of the Naturalists' Society of New South Wales for the ensuing year.

ITALIANS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

The Italian Consul in Sydney has issued a notification inviting all Italian conscripts or reservists residing in New South Wales, and belonging to the classes which have been recalled to arms (reservists born in the years 1874 to 1899), to communicate at once with the Consulate, at 233 Macquarie-street, Sydney, in order that the necessary arrangements may be made in connection with their repatriation.

WAR-TIME PROFITS.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The Newcastle Chamber of Commerce recently communicated with the Federal Treasurer protesting against the retrospective nature of the War Time Profits Tax Assessment Bill, and requested that provision should be made in the Bill for it to become operative not earlier than July 1, 1918.

The Federal Treasurer replied that the matter would receive consideration.

DEAN OF NEWCASTLE.

CONDEMNS THE STRIKE.

UNJUSTIFIABLE AND IMMORAL.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Owing to the fact that the motives of the Dean of Newcastle have been questioned in certain quarters the Dean (Very Rev. H. K. Archdall) made a statement to-night.

"I want to make it perfectly clear," he said, "that I regard this strike to be absolutely unjustified. In as far as this is a general strike, it is immoral in a community with political freedom. The working men of the country have failed to see the matter in the true perspective, and have forgotten about the fundamental duty of all British subjects to prevent anything breaking out in social life which in any way prevents the attainment of complete victory against the immoral position of Germany in this present war."

Continuing, the Dean said that he dissociated himself from lawlessness of every kind, and has repeatedly spoken and written of the decadence of the Labour movement, because of its resort to direct action. At the same time he agreed with the letter of Professor Irvine in to-day's "Herald," which, he says, absolutely justifies what he attempted unsuccessfully to do. He now proposed to retire from any active participation in this matter, and hoped that someone of Professor Irvine's capacity would continue the efforts at mediation.

When questioned as to his views on conscription, the Dean said that he was a conscriptionist because of his democratic principles.

NATIONAL SERVICE BUREAU.

Volunteers again maintained a steady stream to the National Service Bureau, Permanent Trustee-building, 25 O'Connell-street, yesterday.

The bureau despatched another dozen men to the Carlos Gap colliery, near Mudgee, yesterday, and also additional men to Muswellbrook and Wallarah. One of the coastal steamers was fully equipped with a crew.

Further men are being enrolled for the Invincible colliery, Cullen Bullen. Among others that are required for this mine, in addition to miners, fitters, and wheelers, are roadlayers and a horseshoer.

Seamen with discharges are specially required, besides other classes of labour, for the boats.

It is intended to institute a camp of competent shovelmen and friction-winch drivers for discharging coal in Sydney Harbour. For this 120 men are required. They will be paid full award rates, with free board and lodging, and a guaranteed minimum of £3 a week. They will be put into a special camp, and taken to their work by launch. Only seasoned, experienced men of good physique, should apply. The selection will be made at the National Service rooms at half-past 10 on Monday morning.

Totals	6006	2117

This shows, as compared with yesterday's figures, an increase of 186 strikers re-employed and 66 new hands taken on.

LOYAL SERVICE BUREAU.

Over 100 volunteers came forward and had their names registered at the Women's Loyal Service Bureau yesterday. A requisition for a few meat-packers was filled. The darning and mending scheme at the Showground is now in full operation. The women workers have been given the use of the Press room, and as the weekly laundry comes in they attend to the repairs for the voluntary workers.

LIGHT AND POWER.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for the Navy, Mr. Cook, to-night stated that, as the result of careful conservation of coal exercised by the Coal Board, he was able to announce a further extension till midnight on the 15th instant of the use of coal, coke, gas, and electric power.

SUNDAY GAS RESTRICTIONS.

It was ascertained from the secretary of the Gas Emergency Board, Mr. Spencer Woodham, on inquiry last night, that it had been definitely decided to make no modifications in the restrictions on the use of gas supplied by the Australian Gas-light Company, Ltd., for Sunday. No gas, therefore, can be used in private houses and boarding-houses for lighting, cooking, and heating, except between the hours of 5 p.m. and 10.30 p.m. The board was also reluctantly compelled to refuse permission for the use of gas supplied by this company for the lighting of churches to-morrow. The prohibition of the use of gas for this purpose only applies to that supplied by the Australian Gaslight Company, Ltd.

No action has yet been taken by the board in the direction of removing the prohibition on the use of the Australian Gaslight Company's gas in private houses and boarding-houses between 5 a.m. and 8 a.m. The matter may possibly be considered at the sitting of the board to be held to-day.

In the case of gas supplied by the Manly Gas Company, Ltd., it has been decided to modify the restrictions to-morrow to the extent that it may be used in private houses and boarding-houses from 6 o'clock to-night until 8 o'clock on Monday morning, with the exception of the three hours between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. to-morrow.

The board has not yet decided to modify the restrictions on the use of gas supplied by the North Shore Gaslight Company, Ltd., to-morrow, but to-day it will consider the question of allowing the same concession as was allowed last Sunday, viz., the use of gas in private houses and boarding-houses between 5 a.m. and 2 p.m., in addition to the usual hours now permitted.

Yesterday morning a raid was made in the city and suburbs in order to discover premises where gas was being used during prohibited hours, with the result that, in the case of the Australian Gaslight Company, Ltd., alone, 75 connections were cut off, apart from legal proceedings which are pending. Inspectors are now at work early in the mornings.

FEDERAL EFFORTS.

TO KEEP THE WHEELS MOVING.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) stated to-night that in spite of great difficulties everything possible was being done to keep overseas and State shipping services going. As regarded interstate services, negotiations are proceeding to despatch steamers with apples from Sydney to Hobart, to return with apples and potatoes, to send other steamers from Western Australia, to send steamers from Sydney to Brisbane, to return with pineapples and other produce; to send the steamer Kooyong from Sydney to Port Pirie with coke and coal; and for regular supply of steamers to follow. In addition, steps are being taken to despatch colliers from New South Wales to various ports in other States with regular cargoes.

RABBITS.

BATHURST, Friday.

The statement that all rabbits were declared "black" on the railway was denied to-day. The secretary of the Rabbit-trappers' Union has received official intimation that frozen rabbits for export have been declared "black;" but rabbits for consumption in Sydney or any other part of the State will be taken as usual. A quantity of "fresh" rabbits were loaded on the railway to-day.

RETREAT FROM RIGA

STILL IN PROGRESS

NAVAL BATTLE LIKELY

LONDON, Sept. 7.

A Russian official message on Thursday afternoon stated: We are continuing our retirement north of the River Aa (north-east of Riga). We crossed the Melupe River in the region of the Pskov-road.

We retired south-west of Venden (on the Riga-Petrograd railway). Operations have taken place east of Riga. We reached a line extending from Klangsberg, Moretsberg, Kastran (due north of Friedrichstadt), and Friedrichstadt.

A German communique issued on Thursday afternoon states: The Russians continue their hasty retreat. We captured 7630 prisoners and much booty, including 180 guns and 300 machine guns.

A German communique issued at 2 a.m. on Friday says: Our cavalry defeated the Russian rearguard near Newkalpen, south-west of Nitau, forty-three miles east of Riga.

ROUMANIAN FRONT.

A Roumanian communique issued on Tuesday says: Near Marasesti our artillery dispersed masses of the enemy which were preparing an attack. The enemy endeavoured to break through between Varnitza and Monastivara, but was repulsed after heavy fighting.

NAVAL ACTIVITY.

Reports have reached New York that the German fleet is preparing to attack Reval (at the entrance to the Gulf of Finland).

A despatch received by the Russian Embassy in Washington says that the Russian Baltic fleet is preparing for an expected German naval attack in the vicinity of Kronstadt.

Copenhagen states that both Berlin and Helsingfors report that German squadrons have been seen at the entrance to the Gulf of Finland. It is believed they are preparing to attack Reval and Kronstadt.

IDENTITY OF LENIN.

The Petrograd correspondent of the "Daily News" says that M. Purishkevitch created a sensation at a private meeting of members of the Duma by stating that Lenin died in 1916 in Zurich. He added that a friend named Zaberblum had been using his name and passport.

GERMAN FAITH IN SUBMARINES.

ADMIRAL SCHEER TALKS.

Admiral Von Scheer (who commanded the German fleets at the battle of Jutland), in the course of the interview in Leipsic (of which a summary has already been published), said he hoped that the British would still experience Zeppelin attacks, but the weather had been recently unfavourable for airships. The winds should be westerly. The easterly was a very fine wind for the journey over, but hinders the return. The future belonged to aeroplanes. A Zeppelin, with machine guns, could do little against the enemy's explosive bombs.

Zeppelins, he said, were not used in the Jutland battle owing to the weather. "We decided to attack," he said, "relying on the sound intelligence of our men. I could have avoided a fight, but it would have looked like flight. Our manner of attack was unexpected, and it forced the enemy to fight with individual ships instead of using his whole force.

"Even the British record of the battle shows that the Germans were not beaten by a force double as large. As to whether there will be another sea fight depends absolutely upon the British. We have no interest in seeking a fight, but it will always find us ready.

"Meanwhile, our submarines are doing their good work against the Entente's merchant ships. They promise much. A child can reckon that with a continuance of the present rate of sinkings the day must come when England will see that she must give in. We have not noticed Britain's new defences against submarines, apart from guns, nets, and mines, concerning which Mr. Lloyd George was so optimistic.

"We shall await that revelation. It is all a matter of holding out—German endurance pitted against British obstinacy. With all due respect for British obstinacy, we need not take off our hats to it. It is true that things have not gone well with the German people lately, but we are used to being handicapped. We are ready for sacrifices. Thank God, we are not so spoilt as the Briton. He will not bear privations as long as the Germans. It is nation against nation, privation against privation, and hunger against hunger."

NAVAL EXPERT'S OPINION.

A high naval authority states that the increase in the number of vessels sunk by submarines are mainly due to "flukes." Though Germany has her full strength of submarines operating, and is building larger vessels, there is no prospect of eventual success in the time allowed for America to come to the help of the Allies, which fixes the time limit. Besides, British offensive measures are in full blast, and defensive plans like shipbuilding are increasing.

AN AUSTRALIAN'S COURAGE.

Private M. C. Sowden, of the 45th Battalion, who was wounded in the feet and arms, while in hospital in France submitted himself for the transfusion of a pint and a half of blood to another Australian. This is the only successful transfusion in that hospital during the war. Sir Douglas Haig has congratulated Private Sowden, and Mr. Fisher (High Commissioner for Australia) is recommending the Commonwealth to recognise his courage.

WHAT FRANCE SEEKS.

M. Ribot, the French Premier, speaking in a cemetery where many heroes of the battle of the Marne are buried, said that France is not fighting to conquer territory, but she wanted her own provinces, taken by the abuse of strength.

"We will not compromise this demand," he continued. "The restitution of Alsace-Lorraine cannot be submitted to diplomatists for discussion. It is one of the first conditions for the establishment of the rights of nations. France does not ask for punitive damages, but Germany should be compelled to repair the evil she has done in France."

CARPENTIER'S MISSION.

A Paris message says that the famous French boxer, Carpentier, who has been serving in the army for three years, is going to America as an aviation instructor.

SICKNESS IN GERMANY.

Reports from Zurich state that the military have isolated Mannheim, owing to an epidemic of dysentery. Doctors have been drafted from the front to stop the ravages of the disease.

WESTERN FRONT.

MORE AIR RAIDS.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

Little beyond continued aircraft fighting and raiding is reported from the Western front.

BRITISH.

THURSDAY, ISSUED AT MIDNIGHT.

There has been heavy rain.

We slightly advanced our posts south-west of Lens, and repulsed a counter-attack with considerable enemy casualties.

The enemy twice attempted a raid east of Armentieres. In his second attempt he succeeded in entering our trenches, but was immediately driven out.

We carried out local attacks at strong points north of Frezenberg (near Ypres), and made some progress.

The enemy heavily shelled Armentieres all day.

Hostile air raids on Tuesday night killed 37 German prisoners and wounded 43.

Enemy aircraft yesterday on several occasions interrupted the work of our artillery. Aeroplanes also attacked our long-distance raiders. We dropped eight bombs on Ghent rail sidings, five on a shed at Maubeuge, 54 on billets at Douai, 38 on aerodromes at Cambrai, 10 on aerodromes at Courtrai, 8 on aerodromes at Lille, and 89 on other targets.

We brought down five and drove down five enemy machines. Three of ours are missing.

FRENCH.

THURSDAY, ISSUED 4.10 P.M.

Our batteries in the Champagne are dominating the enemy's artillery, which is particularly violent in the sector of Butte-du-Mesnil and Main-de-Massiges. We vigorously shelled the enemy's front lines, preventing any attack.

The enemy bombed Dunkirk, wounding some civilians.

French air squadrons bombed an aerodrome, railway station, and many bivouacs.

THURSDAY, ISSUED 10.50 P.M.

Reciprocal artillery activity prevails at various points in the Champagne.

GERMAN.

THURSDAY, ISSUED 6.30 P.M.

English attacks on the Ypres-Poelcappelle-Zonnebeke Road, and a French attack northward of Reims, failed.

We brought down 14 airmen and one balloon.

FRIDAY, ISSUED 2.5 A.M.

English local attacks north-east of Ypres and near Lens failed.

CANADIAN ENTERPRISE.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, telegraphing on Thursday night, said: The Canadians carried out a daring little enterprise at Lens during a thunderstorm on Wednesday night. The Canadians and Germans here were separated by a street. The Germans had just relieved their comrades and, apparently, thought themselves safe during the storm. The Canadians delivered showers of grenades, the Germans stampeded, and few escaped. The Canadians seized a row of fortified houses.

STRENGTH OF EMPIRE.

SPEECH BY PRIME MINISTER.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George, had a rapturous reception at the National Eisteddfod at Birkenhead.

In the course of a speech the Prime Minister said that the affection of the oversea dominions for the Mother Country continued to grow, and would become deeper and more compelling as the years rolled on.

When the war was over—and please God the end should come soon—humanity would recognise how much human liberty owed to the fact that the British Empire was not a sham, but a reality. One shuddered to think what would have happened but for the British Empire with its resources, strength, and millions of men who came from across the flood. This was the day of great empires, which were necessary for protection, security, and strength. But small nations were necessary for the concentration of the intensive system. The present tremendous conflict was centred around little nations. They first accepted the aggressor's challenge.

The British Empire was a Commonwealth of many nations. Some of them were old enough to have seen the folly of many empires, but Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa were new. It was the more remarkable and a very significant fact that the more clamant for nationhood young peoples became the more their affection increased for the British Empire, and the more effective and more real became their contribution to its strength. New Zealand had half the population of Wales, yet she had already contributed to the old country in her hour of trial as many gallant warriors as Britain had sent in the expeditionary force to France at the beginning of the war. (Cheers.)

Yet, he continued, local patriotism in New Zealand was as intense as it was in Wales, Scotland, Ireland, or England. (Renewed cheers.) As a man grows in years distinctive experiences mark his features. So with nations as generations roll by. New Zealand, Australia, Canada, and South Africa would have distinctive features which would mark out them in the assembly of nations. He predicted that their affection for the Motherland would continue to grow. Their pride in the federation of free people would become deeper and more intense. The Germans have not yet felt the final strain. When they do they will realise the binding value of real freedom.

"If Russia had enjoyed more freedom during peace she would have been more united in the war. Unity in action is not the suppression of freedom. It is the highest freedom. It is the strength of the British Empire that has made up many free nations—some great and some small. To-day we are one people, one in action, in resolve, in sacrifice, and, please God, we shall soon be one in triumph."

ESSENTIAL TO PEACE.

DEFEAT OF GERMANY.

Sir Edward Carson (member of the British War Cabinet), replying to a correspondent, says:—There is much loose talk about peace. Some people imagine that it is only necessary to conclude peace, and all will be well. A peace treaty does not necessarily secure a real peace. We talk platitudes about a League of Nations to enforce peace, without considering the necessary conditions of Treaties, conventions, and international law did not protect Belgium, and did not prevent Germany's horrors. It is certain that the duration of peace will be short in proportion to the incompleteness of Germany's military defeat. If this war shall end all war, it must be waged until the German military power is crushed, rendering Germany for long incapable of aggression. A league of nations may, after that, be durably founded.

CHINA DIVIDED.

LONDON, Sept. 6.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen (the Republican propagandist and leader), has formed in Canton a Provisional Government, which represents the southern provinces, and declares itself independent of the Peking administration; and has declared war on Austria and Germany.

MERCHANTMEN AND SUBMARINES.

BATTLE AT SEA.

BOTH SIDES LOSE HEAVILY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.

The "New York Tribune" reports that four merchant ships and three submarines were sunk in a battle between 22 merchant ships and seven submarines.

IDLE DUTCH SHIPS.

HOLLAND ANGRILY REJECTS PROPOSAL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.

It has been proposed to Holland by the United States that 100 Dutch ships—which loaded grain in American ports, but were not allowed to depart because they could not comply with the new American laws governing the export of foodstuffs to neutrals—should unload again, and assist in transporting to America the surplus wheat from Australia and sugar from Java.

It is understood from the highest authority that Holland's Commissioner to the United States rejected the proposal, stating that Holland would permit the cargoes to rot in the ships rather than unload them.

[The Dutch own 700 steamers and 95 sailing ships, of a total tonnage of 1,500,000.]

FATE OF POLAND.

PARTITION REPORTED.

It is reported from Zurich that following the failure of the Polish Kingdom which was proclaimed in November last, Austria and Germany are again partitioning the country—Germany is to take one-tenth of Russian Poland and Austria the remainder. The Emperor Charles will become King of Poland, including Galicia, and the "Dual Monarchy" will thereby become a "Triple Monarchy."

The new Poland will have its own government and parliament, but the army and foreign policy will be controlled by the Austrian Emperor.

The scheme renders the Poles liable to serve in the Austrian army, and also removes the Galician deputies from the Austrian Parliament, thereby assuring German predominance there.

GERMANY'S CRIMES.

PUNISHMENT PROMISED BY SEAMEN.

The Trade Union Congress, which is sitting in Blackpool, referred the question of air defence to the General Purposes Committee.

The Congress unanimously denounced Germany's submarine barbarities. Mr. Havelock Wilson (Secretary of the Seamen's Union) said that the seamen have decided to see after the war that the foul deeds of the Germans were punished whatever the Government might do, and every crime hereafter would be recorded for punishment.

The Congress welcomed the president of the mining section of the American Convention of Labour, who, on behalf of the organised workers in the United States, said they were determined that Prussianism, and all it represented would be consigned to everlasting perdition.

The Congress adopted resolutions in favour of freetrade by 2,339,000 votes to 278,000; of an eight-hour day for all trades, to begin a month after the declaration of peace; and for payment to demobilised soldiers at their trades rates until re-employed.

Mr. Henderson, M.P., declared that the idea of holding an International Socialist Peace Conference at Stockholm was not dead, and that it would soon be found that the first step had already been taken to secure its resurrection.

The "Daily Chronicle" has been informed that the Government will shortly increase the pay non-commissioned officers and men by 50 per cent.

HOSPITAL BOMBED.

A German aeroplane bombed a French military hospital on Tuesday night, killing 19, and wounding 26. It flew over the hospital every 20 minutes, and hit the building every time.

NEW GERMAN WAR LOAN

It is reported from Amsterdam that a tremendous campaign has begun in Germany on behalf of the seventh German war loan. The appeal is being mainly based on anti-American hatred.

With clockwork regularity Germany has appealed to her citizens every September and March since the outbreak of war to invest their savings in war loans. Six German war loans have thus already been floated. Altogether the six German loans have yielded £2,987,300,000, as follows:—

First Loan.—September, 1914 ..	£223,000,000
Second Loan.—March, 1915 ..	453,050,000
Third Loan.—September, 1915 ..	605,050,000
Fourth Loan.—March, 1916 ..	535,600,000
Fifth Loan.—September, 1916 ..	532,600,000
Sixth Loan.—March, 1917 ..	638,000,000

AIR RAIDS.

A German communique, issued on Thursday, says: We raided, on Tuesday night, London, Southend, and Margate. One of our machines is missing.

WILLIAM II. IN BRUSSELS.

Advices from Amsterdam state that the German Emperor, journeying to the Flanders front, stopped a day in Brussels. The police ordered the inhabitants to hang out flags. The Belgians remained indoors all day. The Emperor drove twice through the streets, but only soldiers and police were visible. The houses were flagless, the blinds were drawn, and on some of the doors the words were inscribed: "Closed for National Mourning."

PRICES OF CATTLE.

Replying to a deputation of farmers which conveyed to him a resolution complaining that the prices for cattle that have been fixed are inadequate, Lord Rhondda (Food Controller) said it would be impossible to raise the schedule. Some farmers did not realise the necessity for making sacrifices. He had fixed the price, until next January, at 60/—and that would be 63 per cent. above the prices in January, 1914. He appealed to the farmers to loyally support him.

The farmers, later, passed a resolution requesting a minimum of 70/, until June, 1918. It was decided to ask Mr. Lloyd George to receive a deputation.

Lord Rhondda, telegraphing to a Doncaster butcher, said that if the farmers unreasonably withheld their cattle supplies would be requisitioned.

The farmers' principal argument for higher prices is that the production of food would be seriously discouraged by low prices, causing a beef famine next spring.

ALLEGED SHIPPING FRAUD.

The two men arrested in connection with the Humber Graving Dock Company's contracts, are Eric Brotherton, manager of the Immingham Dock Company, and John Cripsey, a foreman. The charge states that between October, 1916, and June, 1917, they defrauded the Government by false representations regarding repairs to Government vessels. The "Daily Express" says that about £100,000 is involved.

ITALIAN FRONT.

SAN GABRIELE.

WON AND LOST AGAIN.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

An Italian official message on Thursday afternoon stated: The struggle north-east of Gorizia continues. We captured yesterday 26 officers and more than 500 men.

We repulsed repeated attacks south of Brestovizza Valley, and captured 200 prisoners. We also destroyed enemy posts on the Trentino front.

FIGHT FOR SAN GABRIELE.

Austrian war correspondents state that San Gabriele is still held against many massed attacks. The Italians captured the summit several times, but were thrown back. Six successive attacks on Tuesday were fruitless. A violent attack which was made at dawn on Wednesday was defeated. The artillery duel has reached a maximum of intensity.

AUSTRIAN COUNTER-ATTACK.

Mr. Perceval Gibbon, telegraphing from the Italian front, says:—The Austrians are counter-attacking from three lines of defences, between Castagnavizza and the coast. The great valley of Brestovezza, running east and west, gives a highway for the attackers, while the heavily armed Hill of Hermada slopes steeply down to the southern end of the Italian line, immediately south of Castagnavizza the Austrians had less advantage because they were fighting on the level country, and were here stopped dead, their offensive power being destroyed. Austrian shock troops made seven successive attacks. There were few survivors. The Austrians from the rear of Hermada Hill, charged downhill, and, supported by a furious shelling, entered the Italian lines at two points. The Italian and British gunners put up a shrapnel curtain which shut out the reserves. The Italians made a simultaneous attack and won back both positions with heavy Austrian losses.

ADMIRALTY SECRETARY.

Sir Oswyn Murray has been appointed Permanent Secretary to the Admiralty, in succession to Sir Graham Greene, who becomes Secretary to the Ministry of Munitions.

WAR NOTES.

BRITISH AERIAL ACTIVITY.

Although no military operations of great importance are reported from the British line in the West, the communiques suggest that activity is being displayed along certain important sectors. Sir Douglas Haig announces patrol encounters and local attacks on the Ypres and Lens fronts, and devotes a fair amount of space in his reports to the offensive work of the British airmen. It is some considerable time now since the British attempted any very big move, and, if the offensive in Flanders is to effect any serious alteration in the enemy's line before the winter commences to interfere with operations, it should not be long before some signs of an impending move are witnessed. The aerial activity reported during the past few days is not necessarily one of these signs, and the absence of any reference to unusual artillery activity on the part of the British does not suggest that the airmen are making their final observations before the launching of an attack. Their present business behind the enemy's lines, however, has a direct bearing upon the attack which is to come sooner or later, and the record number of photographs which Sir Douglas Haig stated were secured on Wednesday last will help to render more effective the artillery bombardment which must precede that attack. The fact that the enemy has so heavily shelled Armentieres, one of the main distributing centres behind the Flanders front, as to cause Sir Douglas Haig to make special reference to the fact, suggests that the British are suspected of preparing for another move on this front.

PRESSURE ON RETIRING RUSSIANS.

The Russian troops to the eastward of Riga continue to fall back steadily, and have no doubt reached in places the line which they intended to hold. The rate of retreat must, of course, be more rapid on the extreme right than it is on the left down towards Friedrichstadt, as the distance to be covered there is greater. Using the Riga-Petrograd road and railway in the region near the Russian right the enemy is evidently making his pressure more keenly felt there than elsewhere, and the Russians appear to have been pushed back behind the line referred to by the Commissioner to the Russian Commander on the northern front in a cablegram published yesterday. They are also pushing along the secondary roads to the southward of the railway, and claim to have defeated the Russian rearguard at a point to the south-west of Nitau, 43 miles east of Riga, and about ten miles to the north-east of the village of Lemberg, which the Russians, in their communique published yesterday, said they had reached. If the enemy maintains this pressure near the right centre of the Russian front affected by the present retirement he will force them to abandon the new line which they intended to take up, and, unless they are able to make a stand in front of Wenden and in the country to the south-west of that railway town, the Russian positions on the Dwina, near Friedrichstadt, will probably develop into an awkward salient, and a rearrangement of the line here may be found necessary.

THE ENEMY'S CAPTURES.

One German message throws some light upon the question of prisoners captured during the Riga offensive, and states that 7630 Russians have fallen into their hands. This is evidently the total number captured during the offensive, and, even if it is correct, it is certainly not as heavy as might have been expected, especially as the main feature of the German attack showed that the move was an enveloping one, intended to cut off a large section of the Russian army on the extreme right. After the enemy crossed the Dwina at Uxkull and commenced to advance northward in masses, a number of Russian troops had to be moved across from the western to the eastern side of the Dwina near Riga. The enemy forces moving up from Uxkull on the south-eastern side of Riga evidently endeavoured to get across the principal line of retreat, so as to cut off the Russian troop trains on the railway and the troops and transport hurrying along the main roads to the north-eastward. Had this effort been completely successful he would have secured a much bigger haul of prisoners than he at present claims to have done, especially as the total announced this morning probably includes those who were captured since the commencement of the German offensive westward of the Aa River, and before the abandonment of Riga was decided upon. The loss of guns has certainly been large, and it is, unfortunately, quite probable that, as an earlier German message stated, these included some heavy fixed guns for coastal defence.

POSSIBILITY OF NAVAL ACTION.

A factor which might effect a radical alteration in the already serious situation with which the Russians are faced is the effective intervention of the German Baltic fleet, and the adoption of a naval offensive in the Gulf of Finland. Several messages, mostly of an unofficial nature, suggest that the enemy is taking steps in this direction, and that a German naval squadron has made its appearance near the entrance to the Gulf of Finland. If Germany has decided to take every advantage of Russia's present weakness, in spite of the fact that fresh demands on her own reserves must weaken her efforts on other vital fronts, she would have much to gain from a naval success in Russian waters. Even if she does not intend to cover transports and land troops, she probably has the opportunity of achieving a more lasting gain afloat than ashore. A Russian reverse on land can be repaired sooner or later, but a serious defeat of the Russian Baltic fleet would represent a catastrophy, the effects of which would probably be felt throughout the whole of the remaining period of the war. Russia, with her inexhaustible supply of men, can always build up fresh armies, if she has the will to do so, but a navy is a more brittle arm of defence, and one which cannot be renewed in a few months. The state of mind of the personnel of the Russian navy is, to say the least of it, extremely uncertain, and, if we are to believe the reports which have come through regarding the lack of discipline on the part of some of the crews of Russian warships in the Baltic, we cannot view with any great confidence the possibility of an engagement in these waters. Whether the enemy vessels will be able to force such an engagement or not is another matter.

LATE WAR NEWS.

WESTERN FRONT.

LONDON, Sept. 7.

Field Marshal Haig reports:—

We rushed a hostile post westward of Queant, and captured a machine-gun. We repulsed raids near Lens and Armentieres. Strong counter-attacks northward of Frezenberg against the positions we gained yesterday compelled us to return to our line.

REFUGEES FROM RIGA.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.

The Petrograd correspondent of the United Press Association says that the refugees from Riga have arrived, including the last trainload which dashed through just before the Germans cut the railway. Hundreds of Russian civilians have been captured.

GERMANY'S REPLY TO THE PAPAL PEACE NOTE.

Advices from Amsterdam state that "Vorwaerts," the German Socialist organ, says that Germany will reply to the Pope, stating that the German people do not want gain from the war but a durable peace, guaranteed by international treaties.

PRUSSIANS AND BAVARIANS.

The "New York Herald" publishes a despatch from Jassy, which states that bitter animosity prevails between the Prussians and the Bavarians, who must be separated when taken prisoner. When the Germans were taken prisoner in the battle of the Sereth the Bavarians, pointing to the Prussians, shouted to their Roumanian captors: "Kill these Prussian dogs. They are continuing the war to ruin us." A fierce melee followed, and several prisoners were injured.

CHINESE TO HELP RUSSIANS

PORTLAND (Oregon), Sept. 6.

According to advices from San Francisco, the Shanghai correspondent of the "Chinese World" states that 15,000 Chinese troops have been mobilised to assist on the Russian battle-front.

PRICE OF BREAD.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.

The London correspondent of the United Press Association interviewed Lord Rhondda (President of the Local Government Board), who stated that England expects to spend £40,000,000 annually to keep the bread and flour prices reasonable. Since the British Government had controlled the wheat trade it has, he stated, sold wheat and flour at practically cost price.

I.W.W. RAIDS.

A New York message states that sensational revelations are expected as a result of raids on all the headquarters of the I.W.W. It is asserted that German influences have inspired many of the I.W.W. activities.

AMERICANS IN FRANCE.

Advices from Paris state that President Poincare and Marshal Petain reviewed the American troops. President Poincare alluded to the anniversaries of the battle of the Marne and La Fayette's birth, and then shouted, "Long live President Wilson," and "Long live the free United States." There was tremendous enthusiasm.

FRANCHISE IN CANADA.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.

Mr. Meighen (Solicitor-General) has introduced a Wartime Elections Act, providing for the disfranchisement of aliens of enemy origin naturalised since 1902, and enfranchising the wife, mother, sister, or daughter of soldiers. The bill is criticised because of the illogical distinction between women with relatives in the army and other women equally patriotic.

RECRUITING.

Lieutenant Killeen, Lieutenant Railton, Corporal Macnamara, and Private Miller addressed a recruiting meeting in Martin-place yesterday. Five volunteers responded to the appeals.

There will be a West Sydney recruiting rally in Wynyard-square on Monday next from 12.30 till 2 p.m.

MEETINGS.

This evening Mr. A. N. White will hold an exhibition of war trophies at 8 o'clock, in Martin-place. Staff-sergeant-major Davis will speak at Wollongong.

The following meetings have been arranged for to-morrow:—

CAMPERDOWN SHOOTING.

WEARNE DISCHARGED.

Reginald James Wearne appeared at the Newtown Police Court yesterday before Mr. Love, S.M., in connection with the charge preferred against him of having slain Mervyn Ambrose Leslie Flanagan at Camperdown on August 20.

The police prosecutor (Sergeant Leonard) stated that the Coroner had held an inquiry into the death of Flanagan, and the police had no evidence to offer.

The magistrate discharged Wearne.

BUTTER PRICES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

An order was issued this afternoon, lowering the price of butter in New South Wales. The new prices in the metropolitan area will be as follow:—First-grade, wholesale, 152/4 per cwt retail, 1/6½ per lb; second-grade, 148/ per cwt, retail 1/5½ per lb; third-grade, 115/ per cwt, retail, 1/3½ per lb. This represents a decrease of a halfpenny a lb retail. Elsewhere in the State the cost of transportation may be added to the price, a halfpenny per lb additional to the wholesale and retail prices may be charged for butter in prints, containers, etc., legibly and correctly branded as to quality, etc. When booked a halfpenny per lb and when delivered a further halfpenny per lb may be added to the retail prices.

These prices will come into force on Monday.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK

SETTLEMENT

PRACTICALLY ASSURED

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER MEDIATES

TERMS NOT DISCLOSED

An immediate settlement of the strike may be looked for.

Acting independently of the Government in his capacity as Industrial Commissioner, Mr. J. B. Holme, B.A., Under-Secretary for Labour and Industry, has been in close consultation with representatives of the striking unions during Thursday and yesterday, and up till nearly midnight last night.

The result of his mediation is expected to be a settlement of the strike on Monday next.

No terms are yet disclosed, but it may be taken for granted that, with slight modifications, the proposals of the Government have been endorsed by the union representatives, thus arriving at an entirely satisfactory compromise.

NEGOTIATIONS.

EVE OF SETTLEMENT.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

There is every possibility of the strike of railway and tramway employees being called off on Monday next.

At midnight last night, after consultations which had lasted practically throughout the day and night, the following statement was made by Mr. Beeby, Minister for Labour and Industry:—

"Mr. J. B. Holme, the Special Commissioner for Conciliation under the Industrial Arbitration Act, 1912, has, in the exercise of his statutory duty, been throughout to-day and to-night in conference with representatives of striking unions.

"The present situation was thoroughly canvassed by him with members of the Committee, and it is likely that the negotiations which he has been conducting will produce results of an important character.

"No settlement has yet been arrived at, but the proposals which he has made and intends to submit to the Cabinet may be found to be acceptable to the unions.

"As members of the Committee did not leave the Commissioner's Office until after 11 o'clock to-night, it was not possible to carry the proposals to the conference of unions, which has been sitting contemporaneously at the Trades Hall. This step will be taken on Saturday, when it will be ascertained if it is necessary to refer the proposals to the Government for confirmation."

MR. HOLME'S POSITION.

MEN SATISFIED.

GOVERNMENT NOT VINDICTIVE

It was known that the Industrial Commissioner had interested himself in the matter of mediation, quite apart from his official position as Under-Secretary to the Department of Labour and Industry. The Industrial Arbitration Act charges him with special duties of a conciliatory nature in connection with industrial disputes—hence his entrance into the field as a mediator.

The chief feature about Mr. Holme's part in the settlement of the trouble seems to be that he was able to satisfy the union representatives that the Government had made no plans and has no intention of acting vindictively towards the general body of the men on strike. Consistent with the general effect of the Government terms he was able to show that there would be a serious effort made immediately to rehabilitate unionism to the strong position it occupied prior to this strike, which it now freely admitted was a huge mistake.

DEFENCE COMMITTEE ADJOURNS.

The Defence Committee met early last night and sat for about two hours, awaiting the return of those members of the committee who were a party to the negotiations. It was with startling suddenness that the meeting broke up. A telephone message was receivde, obviously from the negotiating party, and it was the signal for the dispersal of those present. The point was emphasised that the meeting had been adjourned until the following day, and that until then nothing could be given out as far as the committee was concerned. While it was made manifest that negotiations were proceeding with an outside body, several members of the committee expressed themselves unaware of the trend of negotiations, of which the committee, as a whole, will be fully apprised to-day.

MASTERS AND ENGINEERS.

Mr. Allen, secretary to the Masters and Engineers' Association, said yesterday that his organisation had decided to reaffirm its previous decision to remain neutral.

COAL.

WALLARAH COLLIERY.

OUTPUT INCREASES FOURFOLD.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

CATHERINE HILL BAY, Friday.

There was a clean sweep from the camp into the colliery to-day. Orders reached the camp when the men were at breakfast, and the majority of the men, who had been detailed for other duties, were hurriedly collected and fitted with mine equipments and sent below. The camp orderlies, stewards, carpenters, and even the cooks' mates were called upon to go into the tunnel. Additional machine experts were required to fill the coal into the skips. The coal was to be cut in much greater quantities than previously, and all other considerations were subjugated to that of sending the coal to the surface. By comparison with the previous days, the volunteer camp was deserted, only the cooks were busily moving about their ranges, and the carpenters straddling the rafters of the new hut. The clean sweep had a historic parallel in the second battle of Ypres, when all the camp attendants were called out to stem the German advance. These volunteers in winning coal are helping the country to keep the wheels of industry moving whilst the country is at war. The Government's scheme is now fairly started, and has every prospect of greater success than was thought possible. The mine was worked last Saturday, but as to-morrow is the district back-Saturday the colliery will again be worked.

It is good to see how loyally the officials from the other collieries working the Newcastle, South Maitland, and Greta seams are helping the organisation underground. Officers who have not done the practical manual work for years go in every day in pit clothes of the miners, and work as hard as any miner. Mr. Welford, the underground manager of Wallarah colliery, has charge of the work below, and these officials—many of them high ones—never question their orders. They handle the coal-cutting machines, skips, drills, or fire the shots, and not infrequently act as clippers. When the "knock off" whistle blows they come out of the tunnel as black as niggers, and as jolly as sand boys. The volunteer officials are camped or housed at the colliery. They have, most of them, seen many mining strikes before, but never have they worked so hard, lived so hard, or had a merrier time. Old formulas are reversed, and to-day the master is as good as Jack. Such a spirit cannot be conquered, and in the words of one of them last night, "We are here to stay until the men are ready to take our jobs again." No stress need be laid on the fact that with such an expert staff below the process of moulding the volunteers, no matter how inexperienced, into a complete and competent colliery unit presents no insuperable difficulty.

More machine hands joined the loyalists' camp to-day, and the operation of these additional machines had an immediate effect on the output, and it is now four times greater than at the beginning of the week. Colliers are being despatched daily to Sydney. Yesterday both the Illaroo and the Tuggerah sailed with full cargoes. A number of men are leaving for Sydney to-day; but some of them are returning at the week-end. Coal-getting requirements have reduced the camp staff, and more stewards are required to replace the men put on the coal. The work on the surface is proceeding splendidly, and men can be shifted to various places without interfering with the operations. The transport arrangements with Newcastle under the supervision of Mr. D. Macdonald are now running smoothly.

CULLEN BULLEN.

LITHGOW, Friday.

The latest report from Cullen Bullen is as follows:—Considering that the Invincible is a difficult colliery to be worked, the manager says he is not at all dissatisfied with the way the men are shaping. On Wednesday about 200 tons of coal reached the surface, but yesterday the output dropped to about 160 tons, owing to a few minor troubles. To-day, however, it is expected to be over 200 tons. It is stated that the boycott against the three colliery officials is being tightened, and an endeavour is being made to prevent Portland firms, as well as the few shops at Cullen Bullen, from supplying the necessaries of life to the three persons mentioned.

RESTRICTED SUPPLIES.

The Coal Board met yesterday afternoon. It was decided to further extend the time during which persons holding stocks of coal and coke exceeding five tons may continue to use restricted supplies till midnight on Wednesday, the 12th inst.

COAL FOR VICTORIA.

Arrangements were completed yesterday between the State Government and Mr. F. Hagelthorn, Minister for Agriculture in the Victorian Cabinet, who came over from Melbourne for the purpose, for the opening of another coal mine. The mine is to be opened in the Maitland district, and the output of coal is to be handed to the Victorian Government, provided sufficient labour can be organised in that State and sent over to do the work.

TARONGA PARK.

The Zoological Gardens at Taronga Park have been temporarily closed during the period that the gardens are being used for the voluntary workers' camp.

SHIPPING.

A number of vessels left for coastal ports north and south yesterday. The Excella finally got away on Friday morning for Tasmania, with a cargo. Other vessels are being loaded with cargo, and there will be a number of departures during the next few days. Interstate passenger boats are still tied up, but there is a likelihood that one or two of these may soon be on the move.

The manner in which difficulties created by the strike have been overcome is shown in the work done at Rose Bay on the Bellinger. This steamer during a recent trip north broke one of her propellers. After loading timber for Mr. F. M. Ellis, of Sydney, for the State Timber Yards, she came south. Owing to the strike it was impossible to dock the vessel. Captain G. Petersen, who is in command, after consultation with Mr. Ellis, decided to beach her at Rose Bay and effect the necessary repairs. She was floated on to the beach at high tide, and the new propeller was placed in position at low water. Yesterday morning the vessel was floated off, and proceeded to her berth at Pyrmont. She left last night with a full cargo for the Bellinger River.

LOYALISTS' CAMP.

OVER 6200 WORKERS.

There are now over 6200 men in the two loyal labour camps—the Sydney Cricket Ground and Taronga Park. Every day fresh batches of men arrive from the country, the number yesterday being about 150.

GAS SUPPLY.

It is quite probable that at an early date some of the present restrictions in the use of gas will be removed.

CLYDE.

At the Clyde Engineering Company's works the work of repairing the Government locomotives is being proceeded with. No trouble is anticipated in securing additional hands should the necessity arise.

CANCELLED.

PREFERENCE TO UNIONISTS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, indicated this evening that notices are to be served almost immediately under the powers conferred upon the Ministry by the regulation approved yesterday, to cancel preference to unionists granted under agreements. During the day a telegram was received by Mr. Hughes from Ayr (Queensland) to the effect that the wharf labourers at Bowen, Mackay, and Townsville had refused to load sugar. Inquiries were made, and this news was confirmed. Efforts, Mr. Hughes said, were being made to load the sugar immediately. The Prime Minister added that preference to unionists working under an agreement at these ports would be at once cancelled, and that these notices of cancellation would also include the wharf labourers at Sydney, Melbourne, and Fremantle, and any other ports which might be similarly implicated.

TIMBER-WORKERS.

UNSKILLED MEN STRIKE.

BISCUIT BOXES FOR WAR NEEDS.

A number of the employees in the employ of the Co-operative Box Company of New South Wales, Ltd., Balmain, went on strike yesterday. Mr. Leask, the works superintendent, subsequently made the following statement:—"We are making biscuit boxes for a certain biscuit factory which requires the boxes for the purpose of despatching biscuits for the men at the front. A union official visited the place this morning, and said that he wanted to address the employees. I requested to be allowed to place the other side to the men, but the union official objected, and said he would take the employees away to a hall. However, only about 30 of the unskilled employees in our service have gone on strike, but the engineers, machinists, and sawyers are still working. We can carry on, notwithstanding the action of the strikers."

The secretary of the Amalgamated Timber Workers' Union stated that about 200 members of that organisation came out yesterday —130 in one establishment, and about 70 in another—on the ground that they refused to handle "black" timber. Something like 3000 members of the union were now out of employment, including, roughly, 1000 on strike.

CRAFT UNIONS.

MEETING ON FRIDAY.

It is estimated that about 5000 men attended the mass meeting in the Town Hall yesterday morning of the iron trade workers, including the Amalgamated Engineers, the Australian Engineers, Moulders, Boilermakers, Electrical Trades, Federated Ironworkers, Blacksmiths, Iron, Brass, and Steel Dressers, and assistants to mechanics. Mr. W. Pagden, president of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, presided. Members of the Defence Committee and representatives of labour organisations in all the States, and also at Port Darwin, were, it is stated, present.

A big crowd was at the Town Hall half an hour or more before the commencement of the meeting, and as each man passed through the doors, he either had to show his card or to have someone to vouch for him. For about an hour the men were streaming into the building, which was filled in every part.

Press representatives were not admitted, but the chairman, in a statement at the close of the meeting, said the following resolutions had been carried without a single hand against it:—"That this meeting of craftsmen reaffirms its decision to stand loyal to the Defence Committee in its endeavour to prevent, by every legitimate means in its power, the Government of New South Wales and its sponsors in what we believe is an attempt to crush trade unionism."

Questioned as to the primary object of the meeting, the chairman said it was to give a progress report and to "get an expression of opinion as to the movement generally." He added that the speakers were:—Messrs. Boyd (Boilermakers), Bathgate (Moulders), Baddeley (Coalminers), Muir (Boilermakers), Mostyn (Electrical Trades), A. C. Willis (Coalminers), and Ward (Amalgamated Engineers), the last-named reporting as to the position at Newcastle. The chairman stated also that the resolution referred to was moved and seconded by Mr. Muir and Mr. Mostyn respectively.

"References," he went on to say, "were made to Mr. Fuller's statement in the press to the effect that it was a political fight, and a challenge was thrown out to the Acting-Premier to remove the cause of the industrial side of it—i.e., the card system—so as to put the test on his statement as to whether or not it is a political fight. The fact that if the card system was removed there would be an immediate resumption of work sweeps away the statement that this is an attack on constitutional government. I referred to the question of a secret ballot on the subject of a resumption of work—a question which has been so largely commented upon during the last week by the Government. I invited any-one in the meeting to move a resolution if a secret ballot were required for the purpose of resumption on the Government's terms. To my call there was no response, thus knocking the bottom out of the Government's argument."

PAINTERS AND DECORATORS.

At Thursday night's meeting of the Labour Council a notice of motion was given that the attitude of the Amalgamated Painters and Decorators' Union in regard to the present industrial upheaval be considered at the next meeting of the council.

Mr. Adams, secretary to the Painters and Decorators' Union, yesterday made the following statement: "Our union has decided to remain neutral in consequence of the expression of the will of the majority. I will be only too pleased to lay before the Labour Council the action taken by our union, and hope to justify the attitude of the union in the eyes of all true unionists. I am prepared to affirm that we have taken up a true democratic attitude."

TOWNSVILLE WHARF-LABOURERS.

TOWNSVILLE, Friday.

The waterside workers to-day, though called upon, refused to load four trucks of frozen sundries for shipment to Sydney. They also refused to load sugar from Inkerman mill, also for Sydney. The men claim this is not a strike, but individually they refuse to work. Serious results are expected.

THE RAILWAYS.

Yesterday morning the mail and suburban trains arrived at Sydney well to time. The Sunday train service will be the same as last week.

Similar arrangements were made last night in connection with the late shopping as were in operation on the previous Friday—that is, that in addition to the hourly service to the suburban lines between 7.5 p.m. and 11.5 p.m., trains were run to Bankstown, Oatley, and Parramatta, leaving Sydney at 9.35 p.m., and one additional train from Milson's Point to Hornsby.

AT EVELEIGH.

Fifty-one strikers resumed work at Eveleigh yesterday.

Further returns from the country show that three strikers returned to work at Goulburn, five at Hornsby, one at Parkes, nine at Hamilton, three at Werris Creek, and one at Taree.

Nearly 50 per cent. of the strikers in the running branch of the locomotive department have resumed work.

The number of men employed before the strike was 6282. Since August 4, however, 2499 strikers have been granted re-instatement, and the total number of men who have resumed work in the running sheds and workshops combined is 3289.

THE TRAMS.

The tramway services are working well. The revenue collected on Thursday was satisfactory. There was an improved service of trams last night to meet requirements consequent upon retail shops being kept open until 9 p.m.

On Sunday a modified tram service will be run between 1 p.m. and 9 p.m. on such lines and at such times as advertised.

SHUNTERS RESOLUTE.

A large meeting of shunters in the metropolitan division, and also from the country, was held at Rawson-chambers yesterday. The following resolution was carried:—"That this representative meeting of shunters hereby resolves to stand firm and not to return until so ordered by the Defence Committee, and under no circumstances to return to work if there is victimisation in any shape or form."

BATHURST, Friday.

Local railway traffic is increasing. Three goods trains were despatched to Darling Harbour to-day and one to Eskbank; two goods trains also went to Orange, and another to Wellington. To-morrow two stock trains, one from Bourke and one from Trangie, are scheduled for Flemington; two goods trains for Darling Harbour and one for Eskbank will also be despatched.

LOCO. DRIVERS.

EXECUTIVE OFFICERS RESIGN.

APPLY FOR REINSTATEMENT.

On Thursday morning about 600 members of the Sydney branch of the Loco. Drivers, Firemen, and Cleaners' Association met at Newtown, and passed a resolution affirming their decision not to resume work. The resolution was carried with only two dissentients.

Within a few hours of this decision eight drivers and firemen signed on at Eveleigh.

A "Herald" reporter was informed at the Chief Mechanical Engineer's office yesterday that an officer in that department had been deputed to inquire into the cases of several strikers who had applied for reinstatement. Among the number were four engine-drivers who were members of the executive of the Loco. Drivers, Firemen, and Cleaners' Association which confirmed the decision of the Sydney branch to call upon all members of the association to strike on August 4. He learned that they had resigned from the union within the past few days, and had immediately applied to the railway department for re-employment. They said that the union had committed a grave error when they decided to precipitate a strike, and expressed their keen dissatisfaction with the management and tactics which were adopted at mass meetings to intimidate strikers who showed any inclination to resume work.

"It is our experience," the officer continued, "that as soon as an affirmation to stand solid is carried at these meetings union members who are living in hopes of receiving orders to return to duty grow tired of waiting, and apply for reinstatement."

BROKEN HILL.

SEVENTEEN MEN CHARGED.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

There was a large crowd at the Courthouse yesterday, when the hearing commenced of the charges against the 17 men arrested in connection with raids on mines between August 21 and 22. The accused were:—Robert Ward Graham, 34, miner, Victoria; Edward Victor Cogan, 27, labourer, South Australia; Joseph Bradwell, 24, miner, Queensland; Joseph Stacey, 36, miner, New South Wales; Patrick McInerney, 27, miner, Victoria; William Johnson, 27, labourer, Queensland; George Huntingford, 30, miner, New Zealand; Ernest Reid, 23, miner, New South Wales; Claud John Henry Joyce, 27, journalist, Tasmania; Angus Farquhar Sinclair, 34, miner, Queensland; George Kerr, 34, miner, Victoria; John Pearce Mitchell, 53, miner, South Australia; Basil James Bryan, 24, labourer, South Australia; Frank Stacey (proper name Frank O'Connell), 30, miner, Victoria; Peter O'Grady, 44, miner, Victoria; Charles Robinson, 50, labourer, Victoria; Michael Sawtell, 35, miner, South Australia. The accused Kerr is president of the A.M.A., and some of the others hold prominent positions in union circles. Bradwell is serving a sentence for his participation in the Argent-street disturbance of August 23, and Cogan, Sawtell, and Johnson for being members of the I.W.W.

Mr. J. R. Edwards appeared for the prosecution, and the accused were undefended.

The charge against the accused was that between August 20 and August 22 they did, in company with others, behave riotously, damage certain mines, and assault J. Shevill.

The charge was a long one, and after it had been read Kerr asked to be supplied with a copy.

The magistrate (Mr. H. Giles Shaw, S.M.): Put it all down in the one word, "riot."

The accused: That is the whole charge?

The magistrate: That covers it.

Superintendent Miller, Sergeant Collins, and others gave lengthy evidence regarding the proceedings at the mines and in the streets.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday.

The Acting Minister for Defence in Parliament on Thursday, said that owing to serious civil disorder with which the local police were powerless to deal, it had been found necessary by the State Ministry to send additional police to Broken Hill from Adelaide, and subsequently others from Sydney. In order to meet any development a special train had been held in readiness to despatch further police to Broken Hill.

IN THE COUNTRY.

GLEN INNES, Friday.

So far no men have struck work locally, but evidence of sympathy with strikers has not been wanting. A few mornings ago about 20,000 gallons of water at the local railway yards was allowed to run to waste, through some mischievous person turning the taps on over night. Fortunately the Brisbane mail, passing through, did not require water at this station; otherwise there would have been an interruption to traffic for several hours.

A meeting was held a few evenings ago, at which resolutions were carried that certain businesses and persons in Glen Innes should be declared "black." These include the hotels, shops, and residences of those who went to the assistance of the Government in the crisis.

The local municipal council, which is getting short of coal, has received word that a truck is being despatched from Muswellbrook this week.

GOULBURN, Friday.

Local railway work is proceeding most satisfactorily. Men are dribbling back.

PARKES, Friday.

A public meeting, called to urge the Government to appoint an independent tribunal to settle the strike, lapsed owing to the smallness of the attendance.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

A one-armed coach driver named Norman Lindsay was driving on the Port Kembla-road when a man jumped on the coach and called him a "scab," at the same time assaulting him and dragging him off the coach. Lindsay reported the matter to the police.

A WAR PRECAUTION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A War Precaution Regulation was issued last night giving the Government power to cancel a provision in agreements relating to preference in employment in cases where part has been taken in a strike. The regulation is to come into operation forthwith.

NEWCASTLE.

HOPES OF SETTLEMENT.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

A large crowd of men assembled at the Trades Hall to-day. Their principal representatives were in Sydney, and the men were expecting to receive word from the metropolis at any time that the strike had been settled. There is not the slightest doubt that they are completely tired of the whole position.

Twenty-six men applied for reinstatement in the traffic branch alone to-day, while several tramway men also returned to work. The suburban railway passenger service is to be increased next week by eight trains, making 63 in all. An improvement is also to be made in the tramway service.

Men continue to return to work at the steel works, and carters who went on strike are resuming daily. The Railway Department shipped 212 waggons to-day containing 1724 tons. 147 waggons containing 977 tons were hauled from the collieries. Nine vessels were coaled; three steam navvies were working to-day, and lifted 1000 tons in broken time.

SOUTH COAST.

£60,000 LOST IN WAGES.

SOUTH COAST MINES.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

To-day was the fortnightly pay for miners, but the employees have been out a month on strike. Last fortnight a few of the collieries in the southern end of the district drew for a few days, but all had a blank for this pay. As the average is about £3000 for the eleven collieries, the loss during the month to the miners alone runs into over £60,000. Loyal workers were engaged to-day in loading coal at grass at Central Kembla. Steam shovels are being used, and there is about 25,000 tons to shift. The bulk of it will be shipped from the jetty at Port Kembla. There are also large stocks of coal at grass at Bellambi and Bulli.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

When the unionist wharf-labourers were told to-day that 16 men were wanted to work on a hospital ship there was a prompt response. Fifty men came forward, and work was soon in full swing.

A chaotic state of affairs exists at the Trades Hall in regard to the strike. It is widely acknowledged that certain unions in engaging in a sympathy strike, and the Union Defence Committee in ordering unionists to refuse to work with volunteers, have acted foolishly. As the days pass by the feeling of discontent and disagreement grows rapidly. The financial position is disturbing strike leaders, as well as union officials. The N.S.W. Strike Committee is appealing to Victoria for money, but all that can be raised here is needed for local requirements, and is not enough for even these. Over 2000 members of the Federated Ironworkers' Society are idle on account of the strike. Some have ceased work because they were asked to handle "black" goods, but the majority are being compelled to take a holiday owing to shortage of materials. The same is the case as regards a large number of woodworkers and carpenters. In consequence of inability to obtain coal, Laycock, Son, and Co.'s woollen mills at South Melbourne closed to-day, and 180 employees were thereby rendered idle. Representative employers intimated today that when the strike ends, and staffs are being re-engaged, first preference will be given to volunteers. Many of the volunteers have already taken steps to form new unions, which shall be free from the tyranny of a few extremists. It is believed that many members of the present organisations will hasten to join the new unions.

DOMAIN MEETINGS.

There was a large gathering of strikers and their friends in the Domain yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Wheeler, a member of the Strike Defence Committee, said that in case the committee was declared an illegal association, three executives had been elected to take its place. The present position, he claimed, was not due to any strike on the part of the workers, but rather a lockout by the employers.

DEATH OF MR. PETER GORNALL.

Mr. Peter Gornall, proprietor of the "Suburban Times," Redfern, died on Tuesday last, and was buried at Waverley in the presence of the leading residents of South Sydney. Deceased had been identified with public movements in the municipalities of Alexandria, Botany, Mascot, Redfern, and Waterloo for the past 30 years. He was the first State returning officer for Darlington, afterwards being appointed divisional returning officer by the Commonwealth for the electoral district of South Sydney. His favourite pastime was the study of philology, and he had made a special study of the dialects of the native Indian tribes of Peru and Bolivia, where he resided for some years before coming to Australia. He leaves a widow and two daughters.

LATE MR. G. WILCOX.

Mr Murray Wilcox, of Darling Point, is in receipt of news of the death, on Wednesday, of his father, Mr. Geo. Wilcox, who was well known in Sydney business circles some years ago, and who founded, about 40 years ago, the firm of Geo. Wilcox and Co., of Adelaide, with branches in this State and Queensland. Deceased, who was close on 79 years of age, was born at St. Neots, Huntingdonshire, England, and arrived in South Australia when about 18 years of age. He landed there with little money, but his ability, tireless energy, and resourcefulness quickly won for him a prominent place in the commercial life of that State. The local branch of deceased's firm is, under an amalgamation, now known as Wilcox, Moffin, Ltd., of which Mr. Murray Wilcox was chairman of directors until recently. He is deceased's youngest son. The bulk of the late Mr. Wilcox's interests were centred in South Australia, where he was a large property-holder and pastoralist.

WAR CASUALTIES.

KILLED.

MURRAY BY-ELECTION.

HAY, Friday.

The Murray by-election is being strenuously contested by both parties, and a number of Nationalist and Labour members are abroad in the vast electorate, including the Minister for Lands. Mr. Loughlin, M.L.A., in an address at Hay on Wednesday night, stated that Mr. Doe, the Nationalist candidate, had formerly contested the Labour selection against Mr. Brookfield, at Broken Hill, and when defeated for the selection, he declined to respect the written pledge he gave not to oppose the selected candidate, and stood as an independent. Last night, Mr. Farrar, M.L.C., who has been three times president of the P.L.L., addressed a crowded meeting, and delivered one of the best fighting speeches heard locally, in support of Mr. Doe. He traced the spirit in the Labour party from the beginning, and showed that the expulsions were illegal. The present strike was illegal, and in defiance of union rules, which provided that a ballot should first be taken. He declared that some of the present-day leaders of Labour had not been in Australia five years, nor a year in the Labour movement. He denied that Mr. Doe had ever contested the Labour selection against Mr. Brookfield, and read a telegram from Broken Hill, stating that Mr. Loughlin's statement was incorrect.

Mr. Loughlin, who was present, admitted that he had made a mistake on the previous evening.

REPATRIATION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister in charge of Repatriation (Senator Millen) yesterday outlined two important amendments to be introduced in the House of Representatives in the Repatriation Bill. Under special circumstances the commission is to be empowered to give assistance to the widows of deceased Australian soldiers. The other amendment provides for all the benefits accruing under the bill to be enjoyed by Australians who have served in an infantry or dominion unit during the war. This will include British reservists who left Australia to join their units.

TRACKED 30 MILES THROUGH BUSH.

WENTWORTH, Friday.

Harry Frank Shaler, 35, a native of New York, and supposed to be a deserter from the military camp, was committed for trial yesterday on a charge of breaking and entering a dwelling occupied by H. F. M'Gregor, son of J. M'Gregor, station owner, Cal Lal, on August 30, and stealing two rifles, a shot gun, a saddle, a quantity of ammunition, clothing, tobacco, food, etc.

It was stated that accused was tracked 30 miles through the bush, and found under a fence on the South Australian border with the goods in his possession, except the saddle, which he admitted having planted under a bush half a mile from the hut.

When taken into custody accused made an attempt to use a revolver, but Constable Searson covered him first and succeeded in handcuffing him.

COLEDALE OUTRAGE.

ACCUSED BEFORE THE COURT.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

At the Wollongong Police Court to-day, before Mr. A. O. Edwards, S.M., Frederick Lowden (27) and James M'Enaney (34), natives of England, were charged with shooting with intend to murder, Alfred Vincent Green, on the night of August 25, whilst engaged on the work of firing on a train from Sydney to Nowra. Mr. A. B. Hayes appeared for the Crown, and Mr. A. A. Lysaght, for the defence.

Mr. Hayes applied for remand for 14 days, to Sydney, the chief witnesses resided in the city, and the hearing would be much more convenient there for all concerned in the case. In order to support an alibi of one of the accused Sydney witnesses would have to be called.

Mr. Lysaght strongly opposed the application, so far as the calling of witnesses to support an alibi. He (Mr. Lysaght) would have half a dozen witnesses to prove that they were with accused Lowden in Sydney for three days, from the Saturday morning in question to Monday. The accused, M'Enaney, had openly told the detectives, when arrested, that he had not been south of Scarborough, which was a mile distant, and to the north of the locality where the shooting took place. Accused Lowden was president of the Scarborough Miners' Lodge, and had openly walked about the locality previous to his arrest. What right, in the circumstances, had the Crown to keep him in Sydney for a length of time, as asked for by the Crown, while the detectives and police were making perfunctory inquiries. As most of the witnesses in the case resided in the district, it was the duty of the Crown to go on.

The magistrate said that no doubt the Crown had rights, and so had the accused. In his opinion, the rights of the accused in this case were paramount. It would, therefore, be unfair to send them away to Sydney, when they had engaged an advocate in the district. He must, therefore, refuse the request for an adjournment to Sydney.

Mr. Lysaght then applied for a hearing on Tuesday.

The magistrate suggested a remand for eight days.

Mr. Hayes said that it was a question entirely for his Worship. On the evidence that the Crown had, there was every likelihood of a conviction. At the present time, however, that evidence had to be supplemented.

The accused were remanded till Friday, at Wollongong.

Ball was refused.

NO LEAVE FOR THE FIRST DIVISION.

NOT ENOUGH RECRUITS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the Senate this morning Senator Newland (South Australia) asked whether it was intended to relieve the First Division now at the front and allow them to come home this winter.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) said the only way to give practical effect to the promise was by sufficient recruits coming forward to take the place of these men. There had not been sufficient number to enable them to do it.

Senator M'Dougall (N.S.W.) asked whether the Government would consider the suggestion to allow men up to 50 years of age to enlist to take the places of men behind the firing line, and so allow them to relieve the men of the First Division.

Senator Pearce said the suggestion had been given a trial in one instance, but it had not proved satisfactory, and the Government was not inclined to give it a further trial.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have waited two weeks for some definite action or suggestion re furlough to First Division. My previous suggestion, viz., meeting at Town Hall, while not exactly "falling on deaf ears," evidently only glanced off hard hearts like the water on proverbial duck's back. Mr. H. A. Graham's and "A.M.N.'s" idea of not interfering, or trying to, with this gigantic task of the military, is undoubtedly very praiseworthy, and I for one have no wish to attempt to make their hard task harder. I would point out to these two writers that I am quite as patriotic and loyal as they can possibly be, perchance in this great sacrifice I have made, and am bearing a wee bit more so—perhaps not. Mr. H. A. Graham refers to us parents having our teeth in this thing; quite so; me, too. He also refers to the horror of a second parting for us. Well, my appeal was for home furlough for the men who have borne more in one hour than we can ever know. I take it any man's mother knows how to bear any pain that may be for her child's good. I for one would gladly bear any pain, even of a second parting, if, by so bearing, it could be possible for my war-weary, 6ft, twice-wounded hero, my only son, to have the joy of a little home life once more.

Referring to my remark re the future and its wars, Mr. H. A. Graham says "Sufficient unto the day." I say no, that is why there is such lack of love of country and true patriotism now when we are in death-grips. Too many have thought "Sufficient unto the day." I say as we sow we reap. If we don't sow the seed of noble self-sacrifice and love of country our harvest will be as to-day: shame unutterable. I have a suggestion to make. It is this: War Chest Day, September 28, is as much for the soldiers' good as Red Triangle Day. Let that day be made the occasion of a mighty recruiting rally right through the country, and let every recruit obtained that day be set apart for relief of the First Division. How we would honour them. If this is carried out what gratitude would be ours for the men who made it possible for us once more to see the faces, hear the voices, clasp the hands of those we have only dreamed about through three sad years. As a nation we sorely need to build up the spirit of patriotism, not to pull it down. But we have a big slump in recruiting; a big one in love of country and Empire. The future is full of possibilities. Our national spirit is not nearly what it should be. Keep the First Division over there till they become only a memory, and it's a dead certainty their loved ones will remember not to instill patriotism and loyalty, but they will remember how these men were rewarded by a grateful country.

We sing so proudly "Britons never shall be slaves." Let us get six months' furlough for our First Division. I mean the remnant of it, or expunge for ever those words from Australian pages. Let us not perpetuate the hideous mockery of this boastful sentiment unless we are prepared to practise what we preach, and see that these men get their well-earned due. Strike or no strike, let September 28 be First Division furlough day also, and every man offering will know that he has earned the mateship of the men. It is an honour to be mates with, in addition to the gratitude unending of these men's people.

I am, etc.,

E. A. McNAUGHT.

THREAT TO BOYCOTT RACE MEETING.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

A special meeting of the committee of the Newcastle Jockey Club was held last night to consider the action of dismissing Mr. James Vickers as clerk of the course and replacing him by Mr. W. Brien. At the last meeting of the Jockey Club, held on Saturday, the Defence Committee declared the Newcastle races "black" because Mr. Vickers was employed as stevedore in loading coal on a transport at the beginning of last week. After the Defence Committee was assured that Mr. Vickers would not be employed at the races last Saturday the restriction was removed. At the conclusion of the committee meeting last night Mr. J. Campbell Wood, president of the Newcastle Jockey Club, handed the following resolutions, which had been carried by the committee, to representatives of the Press:—(1) "That the secretary in forwarding a letter to the Newcastle Defence Committee intimating that James Vickers, clerk of the course, would not in future be employed by the club, had done so without obtaining the authority of, or even consulting with, the chairman or the majority of the committee, and had so far exceeded the duties pertaining to his position. That this committee refuses to endorse his action, and at the same time places on record its firm resolve to continue to employ the said James Vickers as clerk of the course for such period, and under such terms and conditions, as the committee shall from time to time determine. (2) That this committee resolves that should the Defence Committee declare the Newcastle Jockey Club "black" at any of its future meetings the racing shall be carried out notwithstanding. (3) That the foregoing resolutions be handed to the Newcastle and Sydney Press for publication."

FEDERAL SESSION.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the House of Representatives to-day the second reading of the War Loan Bill was agreed to.

The bill was passed through its remaining stages without amendment by means of the closure.

COCKATOO DOCKYARD.

Mr. Fowler (W.A.) asked, in view of the treasonable strike at Cockatoo dockyard, and the serious effect in regard to transport and hospital ships, whether the Ministry proposed to mete out adequate punishment to those concerned—at least, to the ringleaders.

Mr. Finlayson (Q.): That's right, fire low, an, lay them out.

Mr. Fowler: If I were in authority I know how I would deal with them.

Mr. Finlayson: So do we.

The Minister for the Navy (Mr. Cook) suggested that notice should be given of the question. He very deeply regretted and resented the strike at Cockatoo yards.

In the course of a personal explanation, the Minister for the Navy said he had stated in the House the previous day that union members were refusing to work a hospital ship, but that was not so. Union labour had not refused duty on a hospital ship, but a misunderstanding had arisen on the wharf, and before that was cleared up volunteer labour had been engaged. When the volunteers commenced work the union stokers on the ship refused to remain at duty.

The Minister for the Navy informed Mr. Finlayson (Q.) that no order had been issued by the Government to the effect that members of the Waterside Workers' Federation would not be allowed to resume work on the wharfs unless they offered themselves at the National Service Bureau.

THE SENATE.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

A bill to repeal the Daylight Saving Act was passed through all stages.

PUBLIC WORKS COMMITTEE.

A bill to provide for the appointment of the Public Works Committee, and a bill to provide for the appointment of a Parliamentary Committee on Public Accounts, were read a first time, and the second reading made an order for Wednesday next.

In the Senate, Senator Ferricks (Q.) moved the adjournment of the House to discuss the refusal of the Prime Minister to allow Mr. Justice Higgins to act as arbitrator in the recent railway strike in North Queensland. He admitted the men had struck against an award of the Arbitration Court, just as the friends and supporters of the Government had struck against the arbitration awards since the initiation of arbitration.

The motion was defeated on the voices.

THE CHURCHES.

THE L.M.S. AND NEW GUINEA.

An interstate conference of considerable interest is to be held during the coming week in Sydney. The delegates are from the London Missionary Society's auxiliaries throughout Australasia, and are to confer upon a scheme whereby the administration and control of the society's missions in New Guinea may be transferred from the directorate in London to a united committee to be constituted in Australia.

The society's mission in New Guinea was commenced in the year 1871, before the British Government had directed its attention to the island. Missionary pioneer work was done in the face of the greatest difficulties, by M'Farlane, Lawes, Chalmers, Pearse, and others, aided by a band of heroic Polynesian teachers. There are now 13 missionaries, and the same number of head stations, forming centres of a widely extended evangelistic work.

One of the chief difficulties of the mission has been its distance from the controlling body in London, and it is believed that the transfer of direction to a nearer base in Australia will be of great benefit to the missionaries in the field, and also supply a stimulus to the missionary spirit of the Australasian Churches.

In formulating the scheme every care is being taken not to impair the unity of the society, and the relation of the Churches of Australia and New Zealand to the world-wide work of the L.M.S.

On October 11 it is proposed to celebrate the centenary of St. Matthew's Church of England, Windsor, the foundation stone of which was laid by Governor Macquarie on October 11, 1817. While many of the early churches of the State have been altered or rebuilt, St. Matthew's remains in its original state. From the date of its completion divine services have regularly been held.

In celebration of the centenary of the foundation of the Marist Brothers there will be High Mass in St. Mary's Cathedral on Wednesday next, with Archbishop Kelly presiding. The Rev. F. Lloyd, of Moree, will deliver an address.

On Sunday last a choir of ecclesiastical students from St. Patrick's College, Manly, under the Very Rev. Dr. Hayden, sang Lorenzo Perosi's Mass at St. Mary's Cathedral.

The new Roman Catholic school at Manly will be opened on Sunday, 16th instant.

We regret to have to notice the death of Mrs. J. D. Jones, wife of the Rev. Dr. Jones, of Richmond Hill Congregational Church, Bournemouth, England, which took place on June 10 after a short illness. The event was very unexpected, as at the time Dr. Jones was absent from his home on an engagement at Torquay. Both Dr. and Mrs. Jones paid a visit to this country three years ago, and made many friends, who will deeply sympathise with the doctor and his family. A Bournemouth newspaper of June 18 gives a full account of the proceedings connected with the funeral service at Richmond Hill church and the grave, which were attended by many distinguished Congregational and other ministers and friends.

The Rev. F. Binns, who is supplying the pulpit of the Congregational Memorial Church, Hobart, till the end of this month, has been asked to take the oversight of the North Sydney Congregational Church for a few months. The minister of the church, the Rev. F. V. Dowling, M.A., recently sailed to take up the late Chaplain Dempsey's work at the front.

The annual meetings of the Congregational Union are fixed for the week beginning Monday, October 5. The Rev. N. J. Cocks, M.A., is Chairman-elect of the union.

The Rev. A. H. Austin, M.A., of the Mosman Congregational Church, has received a unanimous call to the Ipswich Church.

The President-general of the Methodist Church of Australia officiated on Sunday last at Nowra, in connection with the diamond jubilee celebration of Methodism in Shoalhaven. Next week he will begin a tour of the North Coast circuits, comprising Bellingen, Nambucca, Kempsey, and Gladstone, in the interests of the foreign missions of the Church.

The Rev. James Davies, formerly of South Australia, has been inducted to the charge of Port Macquarie, by the Presbytery of the Hastings.

The president of the Baptist Union visited Lithgow during the week, where he held several meetings. He will conduct the opening services of the new church at Dungog to-morrow, and will preside at the annual electing of the Eastwood Church on Tuesday night.

Mr. James Allen, of the firm of Allen and Stark, Brisbane, was recently appointed hon. commissioner of the Australian Y.M.C.A. with the troops, and has now left for London with Mr. Wheeler, national secretary.

Mr. F. D. Sayre, son-in-law of President Wilson, has been appointed to serve as Y.M.C.A. secretary with the American troops in France.

PUBLIC SERVICES.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. G. Mason Allard, Royal Commissioner on the Public Service, met the assessors, and discussed his proposed procedure in connection with the Public Service Commission. Those present included Messrs. W. D. Loveridge, T. J. Littlejohn, G. Carrothers, T. T. Roberts, and C. J. Abigail.

After discussion, the Commissioner announced that he would formally open the Commission at the rooms, fourth floor, Education-buildings, next Thursday, at 11 o'clock. He would then deal with applications for representation at the sittings of the commission. It is probable that after the formal opening the commission will adjourn for a few days for the production of certain returns and reports that will be asked for.

HORSE SHOT.

Mr. W. Inglis, a produce auctioneer, of King-street, city, reported to the Redfern police yesterday that between 4 p.m. on Thursday and 10 a.m. yesterday a person unknown shot one of his horses whilst it was running in a paddock off Euston-road, Alexandria with a number of other horses.

A wound was inflicted in one of the knees of the horse. According to an examination made by a veterinary surgeon, the bullet was discharged from a pea-rifle.

AMUSEMENTS.

CRITERION THEATRE MATINEE.

Bi-weekly matinees are now the rule at the Criterion Theatre, where this afternoon and evening Mr. Cyril Maude will appear again in his many-sided impersonation of "Grumpy." The diverting vagaries of the aged valetudinarian take on a stronger interest as soon as they become the pivot of a melodramatic plot. Without losing hold of the frail character, Mr. Maude inspires it with a purely mental vigour by which the three camellias are sorted out. The one with the hair is traced to the murderous thief, the diamond is recovered, the intruder handcuffed, and the lovers re-united.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

A farcical Californian story, laid at the San Monica Hotel, and on board the "High Hope," will be staged at Her Majesty's to-night (7.45), under the title of "You're in Love," with H. B. Burcher as producer, Andrew MacCunn as conductor, and a cast by the J. C. Williamson company, which will include:—Aloysius Wit, Alfred Frith; Judge Brusker, Walter Champney; Captain Bulwinkle, Ronald MacLeod; Percy Pinklove, Field Fisher; Ince Hart, Tallieur Andrews; Hobby Douglas, Wilfred Green; Georgiana, Maude Fane; Dorothy, Cecil Bradley; Connie Ediss Hilda, Madge Elliott; Josie, Dorothy Purdell; Cabin Boy, Rita Nugent.

"LOOK WHO'S HERE," AT THE PALACE.

"Look Who's Here," the bright entertainment, in which the double-company, formed by Sydney James and Jack Waller has so successfully united, will be presented at the Palace Theatre this afternoon (2 p.m.), and evening. The central attraction, a burlesque on the Drury Lane drama, "The Whip," is causing uproarious laughter, and besides the amusing "rallies" between Mr. James and "Billy," new songs, sketches, and dances, are contributed by Madeline Rossiter, Cyril Northcote, Connie Milne, Wylie Watson, Cecil Gold, Gregory Ivanoff, Fk. Bennett, Jack Waller, and other artists.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

This afternoon (2.30) and evening at the Tivoli Theatre the feature of the performance will be the merry fooling of the Tivoli Follies, with a special array of novelties in which Miss Vera Pearce concludes her season on Thursday night. J. C. Mack's panto., "Mother Goose" (last nights), Nekusco and Hurley, Kelly and Drake, and Miss Mabelle Morgan, are included.

A complete change of programme next Saturday will be headlined by Miss Ruth Budd, "The Girl with the Smile," who has scored heavily in Melbourne during the last few weeks. This singing-trapeze star artist combines songs, dances, and acrobatic feats in an artistic turn. She will be supported by new acts, including the Camille Trio, sensational comedy acrobats, Reynolds and White, novelty entertainers; Mlle. Lilyan and Martha Beggs, and Voc. Reid, "The Italian Street Musician."

THE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

After additional rehearsals the Sydney Symphony Orchestra will give the second concert of the 1917 season in the Conservatorium Hall at 3 this afternoon, when Mr. Joseph Bradley will conduct this fine combination in three "first-time" pieces, Saint Saens' ballade, "La Fiancee du Timbalier," to be sung by Miss Ella Caspers; Paul Dukas's "L'Apprenti Sorcier," and the great Symphony No. 6 in C Minor by Glazounoff. There will also be performed Debussy's "L'Apres-Midi d'un Faune."

The repeat performance of the magnificent orchestral concert, including the "Pastoral" Symphony of Beethoven and the Elgar Variations, will be given next Saturday, when the Mozart Concerto for violin and orchestra (soloist, Mr. W. J. Coad) will be included, this number not having been played previously owing to Mr. Coad's indisposition. Plans for both concerts are now open at Paling's.

WAR CHEST DAY.

Interest in connection with the War Chest Day appeal centres to-day in the village fair on the Killara Golf Links, by which it is hoped to raise several thousands of pounds for the fund.

We have received a copy of an excellent journal, which has been issued in connection with the fair at Killara to-day. It is called the "Splendid Spendthrift," after the name which has been aptly applied to the War Chest, because it distributes freely, and never accumulates cash. It contains crisply written articles and stories by well-known writers, with an artistic cover design by Sidney Ure Smith, and is being sold at 6d per copy, or 7d if ordered by post from the War Chest office, 115 Pitt-street.

A War Chest fete will be held during this afternoon and evening by the principal, staff, ex-pupils, and pupils of Ailanthus-Shirley, at Shirley, Edgecliff-road. It will be opened at 2.45 p.m., by Lady Gould.

Intending competitors are reminded that entries for the Christmas card competition in connection with War Chest Day should reach Miss J. M. Austin, Hillier, Turramurra, not later than Wednesday, September 12. A prize of one guinea will be awarded to the most humorous design.

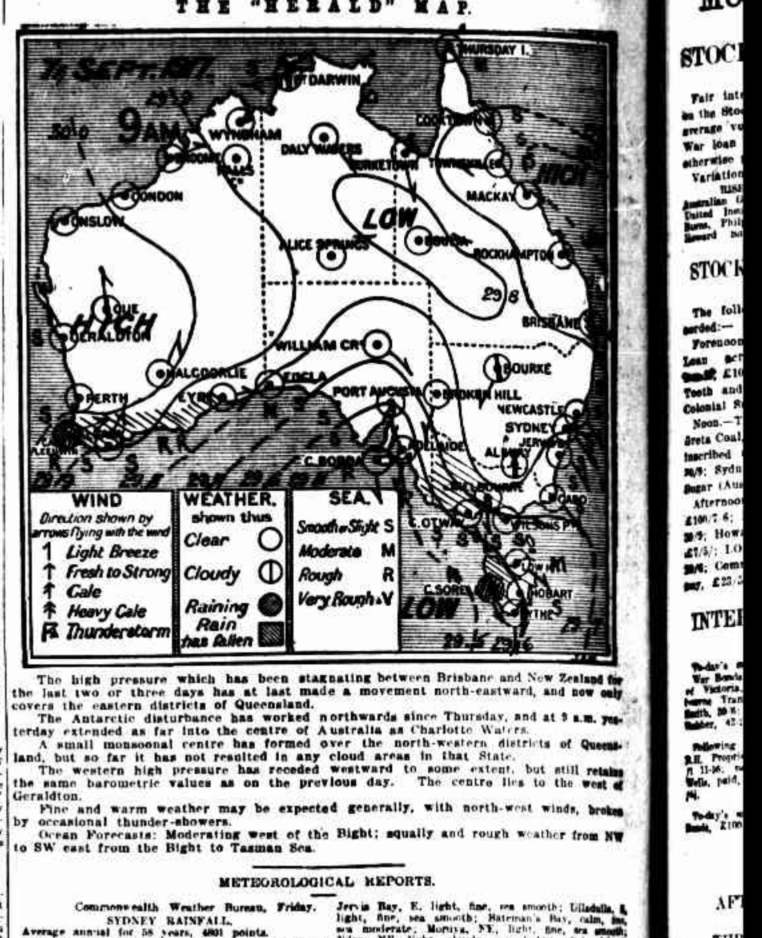

BOUNTY FOR OIL.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The high pressure which has been stagnating between Brisbane and New Zealand for the last two or three days has at last made a movement north-eastward, and now only covers the eastern districts of Queensland.

The Antarctic disturbance has worked northwards since Thursday, and at 9 a.m. yesterday extended as far into the centre of Australia as Charlotte Waters.

A small monsoonal centre has formed over the north-western districts of Queensland, but so far it has not resulted in any cloud areas in that State.

The western high pressure has receded westward to some extent, but still retains the same barometric values as on the previous day. The centre lies to the west of Geraldton.

Fine and warm weather may be expected generally, with north-west winds, broken by occasional thunder-showers.

Ocean Forecasts: Moderating west of the Bight; squally and rough weather from NW to SW east from the Bight to Tasman Sea.

FRUIT INDUSTRY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A conference took place to-day between the Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, and representatives of the Tasmanian apple growers, also representatives of the fruit trade. The Tasmanian representatives asked that the existing embargo on the importation of American apples should be maintained; on the other hand, the representatives of the fruit trade, amongst whom were Mr. Finlayson, M.P., and two Sydney fruit buyers, Mr. E. Johns and Mr. W. H. Price, urged that the embargo should be removed. Mr. Johns offered to buy 25,000 cases of apples, fair average quality, f.o.b. at Hobart at 10s per case. Finally Mr. Hughes suggested that the two interests should meet together with a view to a settlement of the matter. No one had a right to exploit the public, and no one had a right to injure an industry which deserved encouragement. A further conference will probably be held next week.

EAST-WEST RAILWAY.

I.W.W. MEETING.

STRONG ACTION BY POLICE.

Members of the I.W.W. attempted to hold a meeting in Bathurst-street last night. The attempt failed, the police being present in large numbers, and making numerous arrests.

A large crowd gathered in Bathurst-street, and members of the I.W.W. spread themselves through it and started to sing their "hymns," the obvious purpose of which was to prevent the recruiting speakers, who were addressing a crowd near-by, from being heard. Directly the agitators commenced singing the police took action. Eighty policemen and a number of detectives and plain clothes constables, under Superintendents Tait, Kelly, and Brooks, surrounded the crowd, and wherever a man suspected of being a member of the I.W.W. was seen he was immediately arrested.

In a fraction of a second the singing stopped and the crowd melted.

The following men were arrested and taken to the Central Police Court, and charged with being members of the I.W.W.:—

John Kerr, aged 34, a wharf-labourer; Edward Toohey, aged 52, a wharf-labourer; Thomas Patrick M'Call, aged 38, a coal-lumper; Abraham Marks, aged 29, a Russian; Carl Virgo Emanuel Petersen, aged 34, a seaman, born in Denmark; George Wilson, aged 30, a labourer; and Julius Mulhburg, aged 23, a carpenter, born in Finland.

Mulhburg, when searched at the police station, was found to be in possession of a German Mauser revolver, the magazine of which was fully charged with six bullets and one in the breech. In addition he had a pocketful of loose cartridges and a packet of finely-powdered glass.

In addition to those charged with being members of the I.W.W., Thomas Patrick M'Call was charged with assaulting Detective J. Howe, and John Markavus, aged 32, a cook, a native of Greece, was charged with offensive behaviour.

AFTER-WAR PROBLEMS.

THROUGH CAPITAL'S EYES.

Till lately there lived in England a great employer of labour named Sir Benjamin Browne. He was a marine engineer in the large way, a keen student of economic problems, and a good employer, a friend of Labour and a worker for industrial peace. When Mr. William Harbutt Dawson had in view the publication of a book upon post-war problems he asked the veteran engineer to write a chapter from the standpoint of capital. This was done, but while the book was still in the press the author died. His words, however, remain and they are both wise and deep. He admits straight away that the relations between capital and labour before the war were very unsatisfactory, due in part to the workers believing that they were getting too little for their labour in view of the constant rise in the cost of living, and partly to the belief that capital was getting too much. Whatever may be said on the other side there was no doubt that labour distrusted capital.

Then came the war. Millions of all classes were drafted to the front. The men had to trust their officers, or disaster attended their joint efforts. As in the army so in the industrial ranks the best result can only be obtained if those who have to obey implicitly trust those who give orders.

It is so easy for some philanthropist to get up and say that employers ought to give their men a larger share of the profits. There is hardly a man, be he statesman, university professor, or clergyman, who can justify this apparent platitude if he be cross-examined. The question is where is the money to come from? It can be shown that employers are making very large profits, then it is natural for the workmen to expect more money. Now in the case of gas companies, where the amount of capital employed per man is very large, a small sacrifice of profit on the part of capital may do something very handsome towards increasing the return of labour. If it be assumed that in a certain business there is £1000 of capital to every workman employed, that is a very different state of affairs to where there is only £100 of capital employed, and sometimes a great deal less. In the latter case, suppose capital receives 10 per cent.; that is, £10 per each £100 employed; then if the average wages of the workers were £200 a year, or say £4 per week in round figures, and capital sacrificed the whole of its return, it would only be able to increase wages by about 4s per week. But capital cannot work for nothing. If it gave labour half its return it would be receiving 5 per cent., and wages would average 2s a week more than formerly. The higher the average amount of capital employed, the more practicable does some system of profit-sharing become.

When profit-sharing is advocated consideration must first be given to the relationship between what capital gets and what the aggregate wages list amounts to. It can then soon be seen whether Capital really has any margin to spare or not. In very many cases it has not.

Before the war engineering and shipbuilding industries in England were very busy, yet out of sixteen companies engaged in that industry the year before the war seven paid no dividend and those that were paying one did not average more than 5 per cent. The "Stock Exchange Year Book" and the shipping paper, "Fairplay," bear out this statement, which must be put on one side against the profits that these concerns are reputed to be making at present. When Sir Benjamin Browne first went to Newcastle as an employer he had occasion to meet all the engineering employers of Newcastle and Gravesend, and he kept an account of their subsequent history. Two-thirds of them perished disastrously. Of the twelve firms, only four still survive. None of the balance were either absorbed or amalgamated.

Many workers believe that it is possible to produce many articles locally which in the past had been imported from abroad. This in some cases may be true, but it is quite a wrong thing to set out with the assumption that everything that we have done in the past is necessarily wrong. It is quite possible that after the war it will not be practicable to leave things to their natural development. It may be necessary to spend much money in fostering and creating industries where they would never have grown of their own accord. Special measures may be essential in certain cases, but it may be unwise to look upon these as permanent institutions. One reason why capital and labour have not hit it too well of late has been due to the fact that trade unions and employers' associations have developed the habit of interfering overmuch in detail.

There has been a good deal of talk of the immense profits that certain employers have made out of the war. It is true that in some cases profits have been great, perhaps too great. Has it been considered, however, that in many instances these profits represent a return of capital as well as profit. Machinery is being used during war time that will have to be scrapped almost immediately the war is over. Have these prospective losses ever been calculated? Industrial disturbances affect employers very unequally. The small and struggling man is apt to be quite frozen out through a series of strikes. The employer with the longest purse survives, and in the end meets with less competition than ever, so that he can soon recuperate if he does not actually benefit. Strikes and other industrial disturbances tend to concentrate industry and to make it more and more difficult for the small man to start. They tend to sharpen the dividing line between the employing and employed classes, which formerly was very ill-defined. This is of doubtful advantage to the community. While workers live by wages it is well to keep up a continuous stream of employers.

There are three classes of men who are chiefly responsible for the ill-feeling that has for some time existed between employers and employed, and they are not all drawn from one class. The first comprises those employers who combine artificially to raise prices against the consumers. These diminish the amount of trade, and thereby make less work for themselves and their workmen. The second is the workman who combines artificially to restrict the output; he is doing the same thing. Probably both classes in an ignorant, selfish kind of way think that they are doing some good to their own class; but in the long run they are not. The third man is worse. He is the man who disbelieves in unselfishness, conscientiousness, duty, and who, in fact, thinks that every human being is simply guided by what he believes to be his own personal material interest. These assert that no man is really unselfish, that every man is to be bought, that they have no faith whatever in high standards of honour or chivalry. Sometimes they say that "does it pay?" is the only test; and that those who are honest are honest only because honesty is the best policy—that is the policy which in the long run pays the best. Men such as these, whether they are employers or employed, are a real danger to the community.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Cornsacks were steady at 9/6 net to rails, plus war risk. Importers had not received information as to what the census actually showed. Mr. Hughes, in the course of his statement on the matter, said:—"A census has been taken of the cornsacks on hand and on order on August 1 last. Owing to the necessity for rebagging a large portion of the 1916-17 harvest, the demand for sacks has been unprecedented, and for a time some of the wheat boards appointed in the various States experienced difficulty in obtaining a sufficient quantity. The stocks on hand were much below normal. The latest figures for the 1916-17 harvest showed a yield of 150,451,000 bushels of wheat. With regard to the coming harvest, statistics are not complete as to the area sown. In Victoria it is expected that the area sown will be 20 per cent. less than last year, and it is believed that there will be a decrease in all States. But, on the other hand, it is expected that the yield will be high. Assuming a 10 per cent. reduction in the total yield, the return should be about 135,000,000 bushels. Taking into consideration the number of sacks on order, and the number which could be manufactured locally during the next six months, it is estimated that the number of sacks available will be amply sufficient to meet requirements." Branbags were quoted for prompt delivery at 8/2 net to rail, and woolpacks at 4/ net to rail.

A demand for both black and galvanised wire existed. Sales of No. 8 black were made at £50, and of galvanised at £52. Barbed wire sold up to £50. A little imported was on the market.

A small parcel of salt sold at £10. As the buyer would be compelled, according to the proclamation, to sell at the same figure, his would be a loss. The demand for caustic soda continued. It was believed that some former sellers were covering themselves against losses in steamers which had gone down. Grocers' sulphur was worth £17. Flowers of sulphur were quoted at £26/10/. Tartaric acid was firmer. There did not appear to be any more procurable at 3/8, and most holders were asking 3/9. A small lot of Hull's pink strychnine sold at 11/.

WAR RISK INSURANCE.

The Marine Underwriters' Association has received advices that the war insurance risk on steamers to and from Africa is now 1½ per cent.

British, privileged, appeared at 29/3, and Norths, together with South, con., had firm business. SPORTING.

THE TURF.

The turf fixtures for this afternoon include the September meeting of Tattersall's Club at Randwick; Mentone Racing Club, in Victoria; Port Adelaide Racing Club, South Australia; Kalgoorlie Racing Club, Western Australia, and the Albion Park Jockey Club, at Brisbane.

Our Western Australian correspondent telegraphs that an error was made in calculating the totalisator dividend on Alma, who won the second division of the Goldfields' Plate on Wednesday at Kalgoorlie, and it cost the club about £250. In estimating the number of tickets issued, 100 were omitted, and a dividend of £3 was paid for 10/, or 5 to 1, while the bookmakers' odd were 6 to 4.

The Hawkesbury Race Club has decided to abandon its spring meeting on the 22nd inst, owing to the improbability of getting railway transit.

The inability to secure transit service by rail has compelled the Kembla Grange Racing Club to postpone indefinitely its fixture for Tuesday next.

"H.C." (Redfern).—Flamingo did not start in the Fourteen-two Handicap at Victoria Park.

Hop (Haberfield).—Nothing to collect.

The annual meeting of the Broken Hill Jockey Club (wires our local correspondent) was held on Thursday. The balance-sheet showed that the club started the year with a credit of £2001, and the expenditure was £1842. The retiring president, Mr. J. M. Stephens, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, said that the club had had a bad year owing to the war and industrial troubles, but he hoped that better times were ahead. Mr. C. J. Emery was elected president vice Mr. Stephens, who was elected a life member, and was also appointed to the committee.

TATTERSALL'S CLUB SEPTEMBER MEETING.

The spring racing campaign at Randwick opens this afternoon with Tattersall's Club September reunion, and the programme for the occasion affords horses engaged in the big handicaps and w.f.a. races of the A.J.C. Spring Meeting the opportunity of a dress rehearsal for the important races of the near future. The tracks at Randwick are first-class going, and the general arrangements for the comfort and convenience of visitors are fully up to the standard expected at headquarters. There will be no special tram service to the trysting place, consequently visitors must look for other means of transit, which should be well supplied with motor vehicles, cabs, and 'buses, and it will facilitate matters by purchasing tickets for the saddling paddock in Martin-place before leaving town, and providing the exact admission fee, including the amusement tax at the turnstiles. The entrance to the St. Leger and flat will be through the turnstiles opposite Darley-road, and those for the St. Leger will reach that reserve through the passage between the grandstand and St. Leger enclosure.

The sport commences at 1.30 p.m. with the Novice Handicap, for which a large field may be anticipated. The most likely to play prominent parts in the contest are Earl San, Tom Splendor, Enshire, Luxor, and Kilowatt, and the numbers may be hoisted for Earl San, Luxor, and Tom Splendor.

The Tramway Handicap promises an interesting race, in which Conquistador, Shrill, Wedding Day, Auberic, and Mehi King should be most in evidence towards the finish, and Wedding Day, Shrill, and Mehi King may pass the judge in order.

A most interesting contest is promised for the Chelmsford Stakes, in which The Toff, Thana, Biplane, Prince Viridis, and Bronzetti should have most to say when the whips are being called into play, and the places may be occupied by The Toff, Thana, and Biplane.

Hebbenlake, Plymouth, Londonderry, Lord Cecil, and Rushcutter should have the settlement of the Steeplechase among them, and the judge may declare for Plymouth, Londonderry, and Rushcutter.

An exciting race should be witnessed for the Spring Handicap, in which Wallace Isinglass, Colbert, First Lesson, Killem, and Chid should be in the fighting line in the last furlong, and the places may be filled by Killem, Wallace Isinglass, and Chid.

The sport will be brought to a close with the Welter Handicap, and the most likely to run well are Trinobantes, Lambourne, Petalster, Gallipoli, and Maid of the South; and the honours may be divided by Petalster, Lambourne, and Maid of the South.

CHICK INSURANCE.
Why go on only rearing a proportion of your hatch, when, with SKINNER'S "ALLEGG" you can rear with ordinary care practically the whole crop?
SKINNER'S "ALLEGG"
in the morning mash is rushed by the youngsters. It builds constitution and size, makes early layers, and well-grown pullets, gets the cockerels away quickly, and prevents diarrhoea.

BOYD SHORTHAND in THIRTY DAYS (Taught personally or by correspondence).

Here is the sort of thing that accounts for our constant growth:—

"Miss A. B. was engaged in my office as temporary typiste, between the dates, August 14 and September 3, 1917.

"Miss B. came from the Laird-Boyd Shorthand Schools, and the efficiency of her teaching was evidenced by the manner in which her work in this office was performed.

"Her work throughout was thorough, and I have no hesitation in recommending her for any similar post, which may be open."

That is a Certificate given by Mr. R. H. BARR, A.M.I.C.E., to one of our students after FIFTY-FIVE DAYS TUITION in SHORTHAND and TYPEWRITING. Would a student from any other college get a better reference AFTER TWELVE MONTHS TUITION? Why waste the the ten months?

The attention of students is called to our Notice regarding Evening Classes appearing in "Public Notices" column.

LADIES,— AND NOW AWAKE To listen to the pacificists screaming like the coward. You would think that the war is going to make a desert of the world. It's only the muddle-headed that think this way.

WE KNOW THAT WE MUST WAR, or EAT CROW AND HAUL DOWN OUR FLAG.

In plain language it means the awakening of Australia—that in future you are going to be YOUR OWN WORKSHOP, and because of this YOU ARE GOING TO BE BUSIER than if you had lain down supinely and tried to stave down a war that's been forced upon you. There's going to be much LESS UNCERTAINTY and much more clean-cut FORWARD MARCHING than ever before, so WAKE UP AND GO AFTER THE TRADE. One trade totally neglected and right in your hands, Ladies, is CHOCOLATE AND BON-BON MAKING, which you can do at home and earn big money, and SAVE— Transportation charges to and from England: WAGES for Com. Travelers, the sugar boiler, wrapper, packer, rent and rates, delivery from and to wharfs, agents' fees, on which they grow fat; also 40 per cent. Customs dues and manufacturers' profits.

We have transmogrified this business during our last world round trip, and if you will CALL AND SEE what pupils make YOU WILL BELIEVE US.

We want your company HALF A DAY, when you like, and we will show you FREE AN INDEPENDENCY FOR LIFE.

We can't bother with CLASSES. Our lesson is A PERSONAL ONE, with combined 46 YEARS' family experience in this trade at your disposal. None of our family are permitted to teach until they have made a world round trip to different countries and gained experience IN THEIR WORKS.
